Slack Time for Papers Until Snyder and Gray Brought Literature Back, Rogers Says; Bigger Wars Pressing Need

BY WILL ROGERS

WELL, all I know is just what I read in the papers. Things have been awful slack in the newspaper reading business for the last few weeks. But they are picking up now. This Ruth Snyder case is bringing Literature back.

Do you know that reading had fallen off over 60% after Daddy canned Peaches and the Judge canned the whole tribe of them? There just wasn't nothing in the papers. China's war got everybody het up for a couple of days, but when we saw we didn't have enough Marines to send to make it interesting, why the interest in that soon died out. The big war spoiled people for just ordinary wars. You can't get them much excited over a half a dozen little wars running all over the country like Nicaragua, Mexico and China. You have to consentrate and put all your wars together and try and make one good one out of it.

Fewer and Bigger Wars

The American people that are reading nowadays can't keep their mind on three wars at once. We got to have fewer and bigger wars or they will mean nothing to the old public.

Of course, Sacco and Henry Ford looked like an Extra Edition there for awhile, but they crabbed it making a Serial out of it instead of just an ordinary feature. Mr. Coolidge unintentionally cast a reflection on Secretary Hoover, that grabbed a first column for a day, and then the President issued another saying that "Mr. Hoover was so good he was going to keep him right where he was and not promote him at all."

One of my constituents out in Beverly Hills made what looked like it was going to amount to something there by breaking into our Jail. But the minute we found out he was in there we threw him out, and that killed that. When we want anybody in my Jail we will put 'em in there. We don't want anybody coming there voluntarily and breaking in without even an invitation. We pride ourselves on the exclusiveness of our jail. We have used it up till its really fit for a Chicago Banker. That's one thing I told the Boys when I left, "Don't let just anybody get in this Jail. That's what gets Jails a bad name. If you will watch your Guest list you can build up a reputation that will make your Jail different, and that's why we have to throw out certain ones that break in. The minute everybody finds out that it is a Moving Picture or a Stage Actor Jail, you are going to have more than you can accomodate. Not that they don't make just as good prisoners as anyone else. But its the crowd that hears about them being in there and that brings a certain riff-raff.

No Realtors

Now, take Real Estate men, I told the Chief when I left to under no circumstances let in a real estate man, that if he broke in and we found it out to throw him out, map and all. We got to protect our other prisoners. We are trying to build it up on Bankers and politicians and Old men, so that's why we don't have room for anybody else.

But as I say about the news, there just hardly hasent been anything. Babe Ruth has got to the point where he gets a headline if he even fouls a ball. They are keeping track of his fouls this year and they think they will break his record of 59 home runs. Tunney wants a Million dollars for his next fight. That dident get a headline but it got a laugh.

So when this Ruth Snyder decided a couple of years ago to have a Corset fitted personally with the aid of a "he fitter," why she really was laying the cornerstone of what was later to be known as the lifesaver of the entire newspaper business. It was certainly one of the most timely murders that has clogged up the breakfast table in years. You see it come at a time when there was absolutely no opposition. The "Rubber Spund" had no other cause to work on, so they all could concentrate on this one. Peggy Joyce covered it, looking not only for news but for a likely opponent in her next matrimonial combat. Ruth had time to have some clothes made between the murder and the trial. Long Island hadent had a husband killed by a wife in such a long time that it looked like a lost art.

Better Trial Audience

The beauty of killing a husband on Long Island is that you draw a better class of people at the trial. It's far enough from New York that you don't get that ordinary bunch of court bang ers-on. A Murder trial out there draws what used to be known in the old days as "carriage trade." In other words they come in Limouzines. It's a pleasure to be sentenced to hang if you can get the right kind of audience to be present at the verdict. Then Ruth bringing this Corset Architect in is going to add an awful lot to the case. Everybody will wonder if he has his samples, and lots of women will want to see what a Corset looks like. He and Ruth seem to kinder fall out over who should have credit for the idea. They love each other so they each want to be generous and give the other the credit.

But it sure does feel like old times to a constant reader to get the papers back to normal and know just what to look for every morning. Then the Picture Guys have been not hardly up to the "Peaches Pluto Leg Standard," but the Photographers are doing their best with what material they have. I predict a great newspaper future for this case, and believe that the interest will hold, and whatever happens to Ruth and Corsets, the newspapers will always owe them a debt of gratitude and incidentally some dividends. I know I want to thank them for I am just on the verge of hating to read "Elmer Gantry" when this story came along.

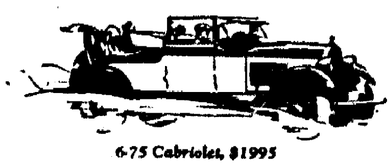
This is THE MOST BEAUTIFUL CAR IN AMERICA



6-75 Cabriolet, $1995

Topping the "Sixes" in the wide Paige line of "Sixes" and "Eights" is the magnificent 6-75. This Paige is a big car; extremely well made, and beautifully styled. And yet it is not costly. Indeed its price is so moderate, in relation to its size and luxury, that it is attracting many of those who prefer the greater comfort of a large automobile.

Much of the charm of the 6-75 models is due to the consummate skill with which Paige body designers have achieved interior roominess without sacrifice of graceful exterior lines. Notice the graceful sweep that extends from the ball back of the top to the tip of the front fender. Note the great length of the car, and its lowness accentuated by the clever blending of the two tone colors.

To appreciate fully the true magnificence of this motor car, you must sink into its luxuriously upholstered cushions, take its wheel and actually drive. For in addition to its great beauty, and its exquisite appointments—it performs beautifully. When may we take you on a demonstration drive—there's no obligation?

The 6-75 5-passenger Sedan illustrated above lists at the factory for only $1695. Bang! On Lake Erie

It's not a bullet from a rifle that follows a command to stop on Lake Erie. A warning shot across the bows from a one-pounder mounted on the deck of a coast guard boat, followed by a spatter of machine gun bullets, is believed more effective on this body of water. After a brief run the pursued boat, suspected of carrying liquor, usually surrenders.

During the first gun battle of the season on Lake Erie, Capt. G. J. Ware and his crew of the CG-120, captured a 55-foot cabin cruiser laden with 110 cases and 10 kegs of beer and 25 cases of whisky, but not before many shots had been fired and one of the men on the captured boat had had his eye ripped open by a machine gun bullet, did the speedster surrender.

Frequently, Lake Erie bootleggers equip their craft with guns and that means trouble and plenty of it the first time a bullet from a U. S. boat comes whizzing across their bows. Michigan federal agents may insist they don't need any guns, but Lake Erie's coast guards wouldn't mind if they had four or five mounted on deck.

Mrs. Snyder Steels Herself For Cross-Examination Monday

CONFIDENT SHE HAS MADE GOOD IN TESTIMONY

Prosecution Ready To Grill Widow Relentlessly When Court Resumes

Long Island City, N. Y., April 30—Mrs. Ruth Brown Snyder, the petite blonde co-defendant in the sensational Snyder-Gray murder trial, was resting in her cell in the Queens County Jail today confident that her story told on the witness stand had made a good impression on the jury and resting herself for the ordeal of cross-examination on Monday. This relentless grilling which is to come will test her mettle to the limit.

"I am very tired but expect to pick up strength over Sunday," she told her attorneys this morning. "I feel sad that I had to interrupt the court twice by breaking down in telling my story yesterday.

"I suppose nothing but emotion would have to do with the killing of Albert Snyder. My nerves caused me to break. I also felt faint when I had to have my lawyer name 'Judy.'"

No Session Today

There was no session of court today. Defense counsel of Mrs. Snyder will be resumed Monday and then the defense attorneys will launch the cross-examination.

Henry Judd Gray, co-defendant who is charged with the brutal murder of Albert Snyder, 'Motor Boating' will take the stand later in the week and attempt to shed light into the story told by Mrs. Snyder.

"Mr. Gray and I had no quarrel on the murder at all" that was her version told from the witness stand in her own words, for the most part with poise and dignity although at times she broke down completely as it came doubly dramatic through the voice of her counsel. Tears, sighs and sobbing at times punctuated when he referred to her love affair with Gray. Her words in low tones came through the big barren courthouse walls clear, ringing and resonant and in diction that did not clip the final syllables and pronounced the endings carefully.

Denies Taking Part

She testified that not only did she take no part in the beating of her husband to death with an iron sash weight but that she forgot to save his life. But Gray, pistol in hand, threatened to kill her if she interfered while he clubbed to the unconscious man as he lay in bed in her home and strangled him with picture wire, she claimed. She was marked with blood from her fight with the little corset salesman and circumstances were so much against her that she agreed with Gray's scheme to lay and deceive the police by saying burglars had broken into her home and attacked her and her husband.

But when Gray goes on the stand he could tell an entirely different story.

"Ruth (or 'Momsie' as he has called her) helped me do it," will be the keynote of his story.

Gray will try to show that he was the victim of a master mind, or, as his lawyer, Samuel L. Miller termed it, "a serpent in the guise of a woman." Miller claims Gray could not have been accused when the crime was committed, but he was "struggling to free himself from Mrs. Snyder's domination" and that he was drawn into the bloody affair "when her mood, will and mind were gone."

Tragic Story Claim

His testimony, according to Miller, will prove to be "the most tragic story that ever gripped the human heart."

What effect Mrs. Snyder's story has had on the jury was the subject of much discussion today. It was evident that the jury was as keenly interested in her testimony as were the 1,000 or more spectators who frantically fought their way into the courtroom, overwhelming the police and even seizing the seats of the press. One woman actually had the seat of "the defendant Snyder" but, strangely enough, she didn't hold it. Nearly every one else held what they grabbed; possession was ten-tenths of the law.

It was conceded, however, that Mrs. Snyder did not hurt her cause, if in fact, she did not help it. She has made a good witness so far. But the state is preparing to grill her mercilessly on two "weak" links in her story:

1.—Why did she leave the back door of her home open for Gray to sneak in on the night of the murder after he already had tried once, as she said, to kill her husband?

2.—Why didn't she rouse her husband when she went in to retire beside him when she knew Gray was in a nearby room waiting for a chance to whack him with the iron bludgeon?

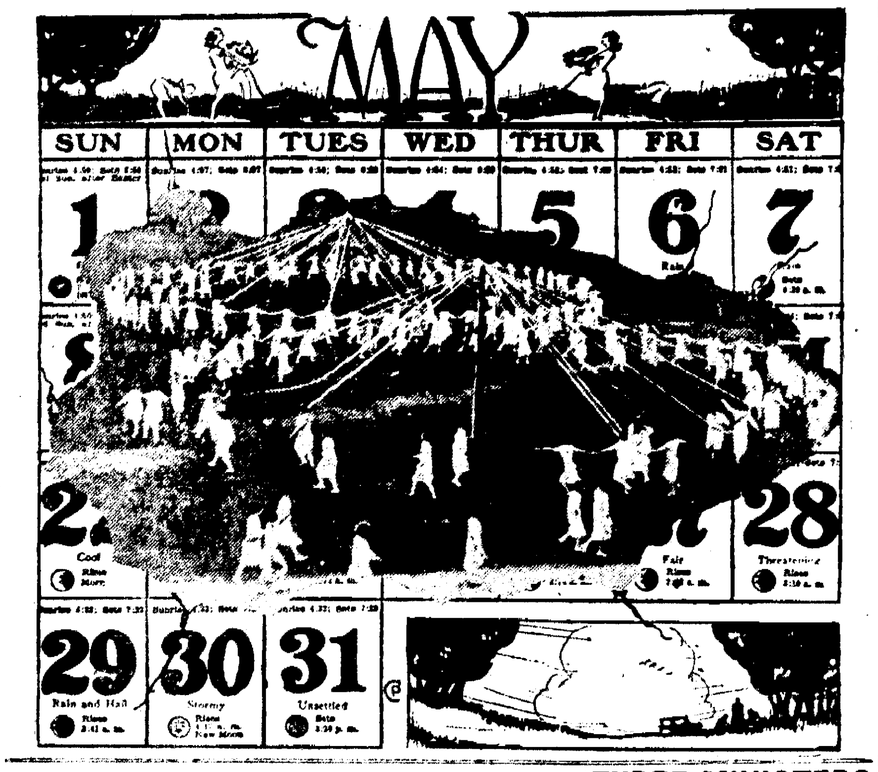
CHIMNEY FIRE

Flames shooting from a chimney at the home of Charles Mahaffey, 316 Patton street, at 6:15 last night, caused neighbors to think the house was on fire and sent in an alarm. No. 3 department responded to the call and found the chimney burning out. No damage resulted.

When it is made the government's function to see that every man has a job, then we will see bureaus.

PAPER PROTECTS TREES FROM PESTS

An effective method of protecting the newly set trees from boring insects, according to J. S. Houser, head of the department of entomology of the Ohio Agricultural Experiment Station, is to wrap the tree trunk with heavy white paper. Tar paper or paper heavily impregnated with chemicals should not be used.



Dawes May Not Run if Coolidge Is Renominated

President Sees Him as Almost Pet Aversion, Observers Assert

By CHARLES P. STEWART

WASHINGTON, April 30.—"Anybody but Dawes" will be the next Republican candidate for vice president if Calvin Coolidge is No. 1 on the ticket.

That's pretty well understood in Washington.

President Coolidge hasn't the reputation of a vindictive statesman. Yet folks who are very close to him do say that, in the person of Charles G. Dawes, he comes mighty near to having a pet aversion.

CHARLES G. DAWES

It's well known that's he didn't pick Dawes as his running mate in the first place. "Hell 'n' Maria" was "worked" onto him.

He made the best of it that time, probably not then having any personal objection to the Chicagoan; but there are plenty of people who believe he'd scratch his own ticket if a second convention were to put such a thing across on him.

THERE'S a suspicion that the White House thought Dawes tried for too much of the limelight even during the 1924 campaign.

At any rate, it was noticeable that the chief executive didn't invite the vice president to "sit in" as a member of his cabinet, the way President Harding had invited him to "sit in" when he was vice president. He said it might prove an embarrassing precedent for some future president, so he dropped it.

However sound his reasoning may have been, there were subsequent indications that Dawes didn't like it.

ALL the scoring thereafter and thus far has been on Dawes' favor.

Finally, instead of effacing himself, like a well regulated vice president, he has consistently made himself just as conspicuous as possible.

While taking a nap, he missed a chance to break a senate tie vote on the president's appointment of Charles B. Warren as his attorney general. Warren consequently missed out on the job, a terrible slap in the face for the president—attributable to Dawes, whether or not he meant it.

Then the vice president associated himself in the most noticeable way with the advocates of a brand of farm relief Cal was fighting.

More recently he put the seal of his approval on the Reed campaign slush fund investigating committee, which the Coolidge following was doing its utmost to cold-storage.

IN short, every chance Vice President Dawes has had to adopt an anti-Coolidge attitude which wasn't an out-and-out anti-Republican attitude, Mr. Dawes has adopted it.

He has also as good as proclaimed his ambition to move into the White House before the Coolidges are ready to move out of it.

It isn't to be expected that the president should look forward to four more years on the same company if he can possibly prevent it—and if he's renominated, he'll have more to say about it the next time than he did the last one.

SENATOR CHARLES L. McNARY of Oregon is a good deal talked of for the Dawes berth. He's been prominently identified with farm relief, which is in his favor if he can modify his farm relief views to match the president's, as doubtless he can—for the vice presidency.

Gov. John Hammill of Iowa is mentioned, too, as a good Corn Belter.

Assistant Secretary of War Hanford MacNider, former head of the American Legion and also an Iowan, has considerable backing.

However, this isn't so much a question of who gets the nomination as of who doesn't. A number of candidates will do in the former capacity. One single definite selection has been made, so far as the president's concerned, for the latter.

SACASA GROUP TO TALK PEACE WITH STIMSON

Dr. Espinosa Heads Liberal Mission Going to Managua on U. S. Destroyer

Puerto Cabezas, Nicaragua, April 30—A peace mission, representing Dr. Sacasa, Liberal leader, left today for Managua on an American destroyer to discuss peace terms with Henry Stimson, representative of President Coolidge.

Dr. Espinosa, Liberal minister of foreign affairs, heads the Liberal peace mission.

Dr. Sacasa rejected an invitation for a peace conference coming from President Diaz, but agreed to discuss peace with Stimson.

HENRY STIMSON REACHES MANAGUA

Managua, April 30—Henry Stimson, representative of President Coolidge, has arrived here from Leon where he has discussed peace with Liberal leaders.

Representatives of Dr. Sacasa are expected to arrive in Managua either during the week-end or early next week when it is expected peace negotiations will open.

THREE MINISTERS OF INDIANA TELL OF KONJOLA WORK

Terre Haute Clergyman Praises New Medicine To Congregation; Many Restorations to Health Cited

The Konjola Man who is at The Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., where he is daily explaining this celebrated new medicine to crowds of Marion people, has previously visited many of the larger cities of the Central States.

where prominent men and women in all walks of life indorsed this remarkable compound.

In the city of Terre Haute, Indiana, three ministers made public recommendations of Konjola after this medicine had ended their own health troubles. Rev. Harrison Jeffers of 118 Sycamore St., Rev. Dan Worley of West Terre Haute and Rev. J. L. Sherill, a resident of North Terre Haute for over 30 years, holding a Baptist Missionary Pastorate of that city; all have strongly written their approval of the work of Konjola. The Rev. Sherill gave a detailed report about his case, also offering his photograph for publication.

"This new compound has ended every form of stomach trouble I had been suffering for years," reads Rev. Sherill's statement, "and I eagerly indorse such a medicine, because it has restored my health when countless treatments and other remedies failed.

"My trouble started with indigestion, and in recent years I became worse. Everything I ate caused a heavy, bloated feeling, terrible cramps, and a sour, acidy, gassy condition in my stomach. Many times I had smothering spells and could hardly get my breath. The gas would crowd around my heart, causing it to palpitate wildly, and I had even come to the place where I thought I had heart trouble. For several nights at a time I barely closed an eye, because I was so restless and nervous that sleep was impossible.

"Rev. Worley of West Terre Haute was the first to tell me about Konjola, as he knew the disorders I suffered for years. This medicine had effect almost at once, and before one week I was able to eat anything I wanted. Now my digestion is perfect. The cramps, bloating spells and acid risings are all completely ended, and the other miseries are gone. My whole system is improved in every way, and I seem to have ten times the energy I had before. My sleep is restful every night, and I don't have the smothering spells or troubles with my heart.

"I will further state that, through gratefulness, I have spoken to my congregations regarding Konjola and the benefits of this medicine, because I am thankful enough to pass the word along. I shall be glad to tell any suffering person my experience, and in closing want to say that my Post Office address is Box 48, North Terre Haute, Indiana."

From one small section of Indiana, this celebrated Konjola medicine was publicly indorsed by 483 men and women, including nurses, public officials, a prominent author, ministers and people in all occupations. Konjola is not only for the stomach trouble, but equally beneficial in cases of liver, kidney and bowel disorders and rheumatic and neuritis trouble.

The Konjola Man is at the Stump Pharmacy, 121 South Main St., (Marion's busiest downtown section and the easiest to get to) where he is daily meeting the public and introducing and explaining the merits of this remedy. Free samples given.—Adv.

Evacuation Forced

General orders have been issued throughout the Baton Rouge concentration area for the forced evacuation of all flooded territory.

The tendency of flood victims in many centers to cling to levees, bridges and high ground has brought about threatening sanitary conditions in several localities, according to reports to Red Cross medical officers. The greater facility of mass feeding in large concentration camps was another consideration in the decision of the national relief dictator to undertake intensive organization of large camps. Those who refuse hereafter to abandon dry spots in flooded territory will do so with the knowledge that food supplies, heretofore distributed in scores of cases by small relief ships cruising up and down the river, will be cut off. The smaller boats are needed for the rescue work.

DONT die of cancer, it isn't necessary. At the age of 40 one out of every 10 persons has a cancer. One hundred thousand die of cancer in the United States every year. At least 75,000 die unnecessarily. Autopsies show that thousands, dead of old age, take cancers to the grave with them.

PAY attention to any strange growth on the body. A few seconds' work will often prevent a cancer spreading. Above all, keep in good condition; with regular sleep, moderate exercise, much fresh air, and your blood will take care of the cancer.

THE Hudson River along Riverside dr, New York City, presents 122 vessels of the American war fleet gathered "in grim array."

One thing would be more "grim" than all our warships put together—namely, a few specks the size of a man's hand approaching through the air and gradually identified as bombing airplanes.

A FEW cheap airplanes could put these "grim" war vessels at the bottom of the Hudson River in 30 minutes.

If 50 planes did the job, costing altogether less than one-tenth as much as a battleship, it isn't likely that one of the 50 would be brought down by all the "anti-aircraft guns." That is something for the president and his secretary of the navy to think about.

SHUT-IN, UNFORTUNATE CHILDREN TO GET TREAT

Child Conservation League Plans Distribution of Baskets Next Week

Shut-ins and other unfortunate children of Marion are to be made happy next week when Marion Circle of the Child Conservation League holds its annual May Day basket party.

It has been the custom of the league each year to obtain the names of all shut-ins and unfortunate children and send each a basket containing toys, candy and fruit. Reluctance on the part of parents to make known the fact that they have such children, especially those defective, has made it a difficult matter for the league to obtain names in past years. This year, however, league members say they have a large number of names and are making plans that will furnish each child with a generous basket.

The League was organized in this city in 1918 and has as its purpose a study of child welfare. It now has a membership of 54 and with Mrs. Ray Miller as president.

May Day

Variety of Observance, from Roman Fetes to Labor Demonstrations

IN ancient times the Romans held Floral Games for several days late in April to celebrate the return of spring. Other nations since then have adopted the first of May as a day to be set aside for feasts and dancing to honor the return of spring.

Sixteenth century English country folk went forth early in the morning to gather flowers and hawthorn branches, or "May," with which they decorated every door and window in the village. This was called, "bringing home the May."

ALMOST every village had a pole decorated with wreaths of flowers about which the revelers danced almost the whole of May Day.

In late years the Puritans caused the May poles to be uprooted and a stop put to the ceremonies of the day. After the Restoration the poles were set up again.

The dance around the May pole usually was observed by the "Queen," a lovely village maiden, who sat apart from the merrymakers on a throne of flowers.

IN Scotland maidens used to rise early on May Day to hasten to the fields to bathe their faces in dew, for they believed it would make them very beautiful.

Today, even in rural England May

Day revels are no longer held. In the United States, May Day survives only in celebrations of school children, in the parks and in college pageants.

Gradually May Day has come to be a political significance. Demonstrations held frequently and during it met by common. Especially in Europe the first of May is a day of unrest and strife.

LEGION POST HELPING IN RELIEF CAMPAIGN

Every Effort Being Made by Marion Organization To Reach Quota

Announcement that Bird-McGuire Post, No. 162, of the American Legion is putting forth every possible effort to aid the campaign now under way in behalf of the local Red Cross and the Mississippi flood district was made today by L. Don Jones, commander of the Post.

"The Legion will do everything within its power not only to help Marion County reach its quota of the flood fund but to keep the Red Cross chapter operating," Jones stated. "The Red Cross here and elsewhere has performed such great service for World War veterans and their families that no ex-service man can afford to neglect any opportunity to help in the campaign now under way here."

Jones issued his statement following receipt of a communication from Herbert R. Mooney of Woodsfield, state Legion commander, in which he called upon members of his organization to align whole-heartedly with the Red Cross in the flood relief movement.

"True to its heritage of service the American Legion has never been found wanting in time of disaster" the opening sentence of Mooney's letter reads. In closing he urges all Posts and individual Legionnaires to make their contributions direct to their local Red Cross organizations at once.

Commander De Pinedo, in an address here, predicted non-stop flights around the world in the near future which would be made in four days or less.

FOUR MEN DIE WHEN NAVAL PLANE CRASHES

Bolt of Lightning Strikes Ship in Mid-Air; Falls into Chesapeake Bay

Norfolk, Va., April 30—The loss of a naval seaplane with four men, two officers and two mechanics, was written into navy records today as an act of God.

A bolt of lightning struck the plane in mid-air late yesterday and sent it hurtling into the choppy waters of Chesapeake Bay, carrying to death Lieut. Victor F. Mayercik of Washington, Lieut. George W. Pelman, of Warsaw, Ind., and George M. Michaels and L. F. Poyner, aviation machinist mates. None of the bodies had been recovered today.

The plane was one of a formation flying to Norfolk from Philadelphia over Matthews, Va. A thunder storm was encountered. Suddenly there was a flash of lightning and the plane piloted by Lieutenant Mayercik was seen to go hurtling earthward in flames.

The other planes swung and circled over the spot where the stricken plane crashed but only saw some scattered wreckage, which soon sank.

The vessel Teal was sent to the scene and still was searching the waters this morning.

Lieut. R. J. Buie, who was flying in a plane immediately behind the stricken one declared the lightning bolt must have hit the fuel tanks. There was a puff of smoke he said and then the ship went into a straight dive.

HUGE DREADNOUGHT RUNS AGROUND IN EAST RIVER

U. S. Colorado Marooned with 1,100 Men Aboard; Harbor Traffic Jam

New York, April 30—Two hundred tugs and officers were marooned about the U. S. Colorado with the workers neglect of which brought about the location of the U. S. Navy's warground in the mud off Diamond Reef near the mouth of the East River today.

While 10 tugs tried not to foul her at traffic on the East River was at a standstill and other watchers on their way to the Brooklyn navy yard were compelled to drop anchor.

A dozen freight and boat crews remained out from their posts but became tangled in a river traffic jam when the great battleship lay stranded out, unable to move.

The Colorado is 32,600 ton ship 620 feet long and has been regarded by naval experts as the most efficient weapon of the American navy.

Charging that her husband refused to allow her to come to Marion and make her home with him and that he consorted with other women, Mrs. Ona Shriver has brought suit for divorce from James Shriver, Marion, in the Cincinnati Domestic Relations Court. The petition was filed yesterday.

Mrs. Shriver recites in her petition that they were married in March, 1913, and that Mr. Shriver abandoned her in July, 1925. The case was continued until Shriver could be taken to Cincinnati to answer the charges. Mrs. Shriver conducts a gift shop in Cincinnati.

port by subscribing the $2,100 relief fund.

Although no definite statement has been made in regard to the reasons for this requirement, it is obvious that the prospective chairman demands that the relief fund quota be subscribed as evidence of the community's generosity and willingness to support Red Cross executives, those in charge of the move must state.

Chamber Active

The Marion Chamber of Commerce has assumed leadership in the undertaking and today George B. Knapp, president of the Chamber, issued a signed appeal urging all citizens to do their part. It was mainly through the chamber's efforts, directed by President Knapp that certain local business men subscribed the $5,000 for Red Cross operations and the proposed chairman agreed to serve should community support be assured.

With 3 o'clock Tuesday set as the time when the fund must be raised, arrangements have been made to carry the appeal for contributions to congregations of all churches in Marion County at services Sunday. It is believed that money obtained at that time will serve greatly toward bringing the county's total donations near the $2,500 quota.

At the same time, merchants and heads of local industrial concerns are being urged to present the plea for flood relief funds to their employes. It was reported this morning that collections of substantial proportions had already been made at several business places.

Factory Donation

The first factory contribution came yesterday from the Employes Protective Association of the Susquehanna Silk Mills, a check for $50 being sent to the Red Cross by that organization.

At noon today Miss Mina Doughty, executive secretary of the Red Cross, reported that the flood fund contributions totalled $61 less than one fourth of the quota. The amount included a $563 left on the local banks and $151 in the Red Cross office.

A number of other donations were sent by Marion residents through other channels but these can not be credited to the $2,100 quota, which must come through the Red Cross. Several days ago a witness of the American Legion Auxiliary forwarded $100 direct to the flood district, this having been done before the Red Cross campaign was announced.

Evidence that citizens generally are concerned over the future of the local Red Cross chapter was provided this morning when two checks one for $100 and the other for $25, were received at the chapter office. The $100 came from a business man and the $25 from a woman both requesting that the names be used to help keep the Red Cross operating after July 1.

Checks From County

Several checks for the flood relief fund have come in from points in the county outside the city of Marion. The Progressive Farm Women's Club of Claridon Township forwarded a check for $30 several days ago and yesterday the Women's Foreign Missionary Society of Waldo church sent in a $5 check.

A large number of donations of clothing and other supplies have also been received, the Red Cross secretary states. Yesterday a large number of infants' garments came from the local council of Jewish Women. Other donations have come from individuals and organizations from Marion and other places in the county. All of the material is being conveyed to the flood district by the American Express Co. without charge.

Halterman's Attorneys Appeal Case To State Supreme Court

Springfield, April 30—Attorneys for Leo Halterman, under sentence of death for the murder of his half brother's wife, Mrs. Martha Halterman, at Blessings Corner, Fayette County, today were preparing for a final effort to save their client by an appeal to the state supreme court for a writ of error, following denial by the Fayette County court of appeals of an appeal here yesterday.

Halterman is in Ohio Penitentiary, awaiting electrocution, scheduled for June 17. Charles Halterman and the latter's wife, Carrie, were slain in the wood of their farmhouse several months ago. Halterman confessed the killings to Otis Slater, Cincinnati detective, but attempted to modify them.

If the object is senseless, the enthusiasm is not.

Daily Proverb—"Examples work stronger and quicker in the minds of men than precepts."

These special weeks might prove mighty interesting if we could only keep track of all of them which fall upon the same calendar week.

We may just as well prepare ourselves for another long-drawn-out struggle. Mayor Bill Hale Thompson absolutely refuses to arbitrate his war against Great Britain.

Why all this questioning regarding whether or not Mr. Coolidge will be a candidate to succeed himself? Has he offered the slightest intimation that he will not?

According to a government report, American women are wearing silk stockings. That's one thing we like about government reports. They may be a bit slow, at times, but they are so thoroughly dependable.

The London Passing Show can't understand why a new theater over there devoted to musical comedy has exceptionally spacious dressing-rooms. It is a bit surprising, considering how little the girls have to take off and nothing to put on.

We are told that it takes all kinds of people to make up this old world of ours, so we assume that every city and village has its quota of citizens who show their civic patriotism by exhorting their fellow citizens to come across.

"Before the National Federation of Music Clubs decides upon a new national anthem," remarks the Cincinnati Enquirer, "each member should be tested as to his knowledge of the old." Isn't there some law, rule or regulation against hitting below the belt?

An exchange says "a good neighborhood is one where people break laws for fun instead of profit." We take the meaning to be that hootch-making in such neighborhoods is not commercialized.

In the light of the fact that that large and fierce cinnamon bear up in Conneaut never escaped from its cage, about the only conclusion to be reached is that it made those tracks all over that part of Ohio on the absent-treatment plan.

Major Charles V. Burton, of the Ohio National guard, has been charged with forging indorsements upon two checks payable to enlisted men. We do not know the major, but we refuse to believe any man possessed of a desire to commit forgery and steal would limit his stealings to two checks aggregating twelve dollars.

When all grade crossings have been abandoned and the motorist no longer can apply a portion of his effort to attempts at beating the train to the crossing, life is going to become a lot more complicated to us true aristocrats of the land—provided, of course, that any of us are left at that time.

Friday, commenting on the report of the escape of a large and vicious cinnamon bear from its cage up in Conneaut, we predicted that it would be seen in the near future all over that part of the state. We went wrong about the bear, but the tracks made by it have been reported from all over that section. Where we went wrong on the bear was that the report of its escape and swim half way across Lake Erie was all a mistake.

Concerning the Local Red Cross.

Announcement made in our news columns, Friday, that there was an excellent outlook for the continuation of the active operation of the Marion county chapter of the Red Cross throughout the year under the presidency and supervision of a substantial citizen, who refused to accept the tender unless ample funds to carry on were raised and he was given assurance of cordial support, naturally had a tendency to cause Star readers to wonder regarding the identity of the gentleman in question. We would be glad to tell our readers what we know in the matter, but to do so would be a betrayal alike of confidence and newspaper ethics until such time as the requirements set out by him in his conditional acceptance have been met—until the $3,000 necessary to continue the work of the local Red Cross chapter from July 1 until the end of the present year is assured and there is assurance as well of the cordial support of a group of representative citizens.

It is a matter for regret on our part that we can not speak more freely. We would very much like to do so, not only because of our high esteem for the party in question as a doer of things and our belief that under him the Red Cross work will be carried on in a business-like and highly-effective manner, but also because of our belief that the disclosure of his identity would facilitate the meeting of any and all conditions necessary to the assurance of the fund of $3,000.

We must content ourself with the assurance to our readers that, if the Red Cross work is continued locally, as it bids fair to be, there will be at the head of it one worthy in every sense of the word of the public confidence and esteem.

His Not an Imperialistic Course.

That the late President Harding was an imperialist, bent to make the crowning achievement of his administration the bringing of all Central America under the Stars and Stripes was what he referred to as "a sinister motive" behind the Washington conference, as a New York paper, one day this week, in "well-informed authority for the statement to the verdict of history" was said to have said Mr. Harding's proclamation to this effect at Kansas.

Nothing has appeared in the public print of the story to "spoof" it and there has been much to read deeper upon it.

"I never heard of it before in my life," said Secretary of State Frank B. Kellogg when his attention was called to the statement attributing to Mr. Harding the desire to have America's authority extended over Central America. I was on the foreign relations committee during President Harding's administration until the spring of 1923 and I never heard anything that would indicate those were his views. I was his delegate to the Pan American conference in the spring of 1923 and all his conversations about Central and South America did not in the slightest degree support any such attitude."

Others have pointed out that, whatever his thought might have been, Mr. Harding's acts as president indicated that he was in thorough accord with the efforts of Charles E. Hughes, his secretary of state, to furnish every assurance to Latin America that the United States had no aggressive intent one toward that part of the world, and wished to maintain the most cordial relations with all Latin America. It is a most significant fact that nothing has developed to indicate that Mr. Hughes was aware of any desire on the part of Mr. Harding to extend the sovereignty of this country over either Mexico or the republics of Central America.

In addition to these doubts and these circumstances casting doubt upon the position alleged to have been held by Mr. Harding with regard to the republics in question, John Barrett, former director general of the Pan-American union and chairman of the international Pan American committee, comes out in a statement in which he says that President Harding regarded Pan American solidarity as the most important opportunity and responsibility before the United States in its foreign relations. Mr. Barrett states that, when the Pan American conference was held in Santiago, Chile, in 1923, Mr. Harding told him that "everything legitimate and reasonable should be done to prove to Latin American countries and people, especially those north of Panama, that our government desired to help them maintain independence."

And lastly there are quite a number of people here at home in Marion, who were somewhat intimately acquainted with Mr. Harding, both as man and president to whom was accorded knowledge of his aims and his hopes, who know many of the problems which came to him and the trials, and troubles and sorrows which were his, and, singularly, these alleged imperialistic tendencies on his part, escaped all of them.

But no matter what Mr. Harding's position in regard to Central America may have been, why bring up discussion of it at this time? Such a course can not possibly work benefit to either our government or the Latin American republics, and may work harm, in that it may cause them to feel that what once was, if it were true that such was one president's ambition might be again.

When all things are said, there two facts obtrude: Mr. Harding is dead and can not speak for himself, and, no matter what "hitherto undisclosed bits of history" may be disclosed in connection with Mr. Harding's administration, Mr. Coolidge is now president, and his address of last Monday evening should be accepted by all as a guarantee that there will be no policy of aggression under his administration.

It may be noted that the people reporting the Snyder murder trial are referring to the confession of her one time married paramour as a "squeak." If the sympathy game is played hard enough we wouldn't be surprised to learn that Snyder was chloroformed, garroted and then beaten up with a window sash weight in self defense.

Down in Mexico the political enemies of former President Obregon are making objection to his reelection to a second term, just as the political enemies in and out of the party of President Coolidge are objecting to his reelection to a second term. There is always more or less of a scramble for a presidential nomination when it offers a possibility, if not a probability, of election.

Can We Afford Not To Heed It?

The Marion county quota of the Mississippi flood relief fund has been set at $2,100, and up to noon yesterday the noon figure for today are not available at the time of the writing) less than one-fifth of this amount had been raised.

Some one has said that only those who have suffered can approximately appreciate the suffering of others.

This may explain why we here in Marion county have been so lax in the meeting of this call for aid from the flood-swept valleys of the Mississippi and its tributaries. We have been so fortunate as the main, in escaping the fury of the elements that we can not realize the horror those flood sufferers have faced and are facing.

Hundreds of lives lost, untold people homeless, hundreds of millions of dollars of property loss—and the consequent hardships which will be suffered, the sickness to be endured, by those who do escape with their lives the rising waters.

And up to noon today the contributions from Marion county to help sufferers from the worst flood which a well recorded history has been experienced on the "Father of Waters" is less than one cent per capita.

Can the people of Marion county, who never yet have failed to do their part in time of great horror, afford to fail to meet the call for aid to the sufferers from this catastrophe?

Poisons in Household Work.

BY ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.

In Philadelphia is a wonderful old man, old in years, but young in spirit and achievements. He has specialized for years in "bronchoscopy," the art of gazing into the bronchial tubes to locate abnormal conditions in the "windpipe." Remarkable recoveries of foreign bodies have been achieved by his skill.

I refer to Dr. Chevalier Jackson, an ornament to the medical profession.

For seventeen years Dr. Jackson has headed a crusade to compel manufacturers of household lye and other caustic preparations to label their products "poison." He has insisted that big letters should announce the dangerous contents of the can or package.

I was present at the hearing before the Interstate Commerce commission of the senate when Dr. Jackson presented his argument. He was backed up by photographs of persons who have been burned by household lye. He showed pictures of children who wallowed this dreadful stuff, only to feed thereafter through a tube, if at all.

Unless they can be fed in this way or nourished in some way, they starve to death. It is dreadful to know how many little children have suffered such an end.

I am glad to say the bill passed congress. The president signed it and sent the pen he used for this purpose to Dr. Jackson. It is the law now, that all lyes and other caustics shipped in interstate commerce must be properly labeled. It is a great victory for Dr. Jackson and for humanity.

No mother should leave within reach of her child any receptacle holding lye or other caustic mixture or compound. All of these preparations are poisonous, but, worse than this, all are capable of producing deep burns. If they are swallowed, dreadful results are sure to follow.

It is a matter worth noting, that many makers of these products have been labeling their packages. They needed no law to make them do this kindly thing.

Labels are made to be read. Every housewife should know the importance of reading every word on the label of every article she buys. If this practice is followed she will avoid substitutes and inferior products. She will know that certain things are poison.

Carelessness is responsible for many of our ills and for most of our accidents. Guard against poisonings by keeping all poisonous things out of reach.

Today's Worst Story.

There was two guys out in Tulsa was talking about their travels. They'd been around a lot and had seen all the big burgs. Each one of them was trying to show off how much more smart he was than the other, and bragging about all the thing he'd seen in the big towns he'd been to.

"Now the thing that struck me in Chicago," says one of 'em, "was the nice wide streets."

Editorial Comment.

HUMOR ACROSS THE SEA.

In President Coolidge's address on Monday evening he referred to the mischief which newspapers may do by railing accusations against foreign nations. He said that "constant criticism and misrepresentation of foreign people" by the American press create dislike and suspicion, and often produce abroad "a rankling bitterness." In this there is undoubted truth, but the president did not mention certain aspects of the matter which tend to lessen its seriousness. There is, to begin with, a well understood habit of "discounting" violent exchanges between the newspapers of various countries. That sort of thing is widely set down in many cases as a mere conventional form of expression which means little. When an Arizona editor warns Mussolini that he is going too far along the road of tyranny, it does not signify much more than did the historic congratulations extended to Bismarck by a North Dakota editor for having taken his advice on the previous issue of his weekly paper. And on the same way the extravagances in which English and French journals sometimes indulge respecting American social and political affairs are not taken here by the discreet at the foot of the letter. There is a certain artificiality about the thing which does not deceive any but the unwary.

The situation is also often mitigated by a due international sense of humor. People smile at each other across the sea even while they make verbal attacks. It can hardly be, for example, that the grotesque exaggerations of an anti-English speech by Mayor Thompson, of Chicago, can really mislead Englishmen. His free tolstering assertion that his election caused a panic in London and led to the doubling of the Horse Guards would be laughed at just as heartily in London as in Chicago. In fact, "Big Bill" with his leg blistering about King George is very likely to become a familiar and amusing figure in the British newspapers. Along similar lines of humorous treatment of alleged misunderstandings, is the hearty invitation extended by Lord Derby to Senator Borah to make a visit to England so as to discover that the people there are not really "ogres." This attempt at an international pleasantry rather missed fire, owing to a somewhat dehcient sense of humor in Senator Borah. He solemnly replied that he had never classed Englishmen as ogres, and wished that he might be able to meet them in order to soothe their troubled minds by giving them that assurance.

Probably not enough account has been made of this solvent of international good nature. Different races are not so ignorant of each other as some people think. They know how to make allowances for necessity. Savage things may be said with such an air of whimsicality as to disarm resentment. Without questioning the ill effects of bad language of the hasty and ill informed nature to which President Coolidge referred, it may be said that nations are coming better to understand each other, even when they are joking across the sea, and that "ancient humor" may sometimes do as much to solve a crisis as can diplomacy.—New York Time.

The Way of the World.

BY GROVE PATTERSON.

A fairly centralized government — a one-man government — seems to work pretty well if you have a high intelligence and hard working head of it. Mussolini is no failure to date. Arthur Reynolds, conservative Chicago banker, back from abroad, says Italy has gone ahead faster in the field of improvement than any other European country.

Speaking of improvement in European currencies, France is doing some better. But France is more interested in stabilizing her currency than in paying her debts. Something of one in her reasoning.

Experiment with sending pictures across the ocean to relieve the tran-mission. The American Telephone and Telegraph company is perfecting a process for transmitting pictures in colors. There will be a separate transmission for each color used in the printing process. Fortunate that we no longer have to admire the wonders of the world to scan. The only question is about how much good golf is to anybody.

The number of persons living on farms in this country in 1926 showed a decrease of nearly 640,000. This is the largest drop in any year since 1920. It doesn't have a pleasant sound when we think of food production and food prices. There are some other, pleasanter facts, however, to put over against it. Improved farm machinery and improved farming methods make the actual crop production greater and greater.

Talks by Those in Public Eye.

REED SMOOT.

Reed Smoot was born at Salt Lake City, Utah, January 10, 1862. He has been United States senator from Utah since 1903 and now is serving his fifth term. Senator Smoot is chairman of the finance committee of the senate, a member of the World war foreign debt commission and a regent of the Smithsonian institution in Washington. He was a member of the Republican national committee from 1912 to 1920 and since 1919 has been chairman of the Republican senatorial campaign committee.

Senator Smoot, speaking of tax reduction a few days since said:

"When the proposition for a radical cut in taxes was suggested a few months ago by some of my Democratic friends, it was my opinion that the proper thing to do was to use as much of the surplus as possible to reduce the still vast debt of the country. We owe something like $19,000,000,000 and the sooner that debt is wiped off the slate the better it will be for every man and woman in this country who pays taxes, and it makes no difference whether they are paid directly or indirectly.

"A mighty good way to lower taxes is to meet your obligations and by so doing stop the interest charges. That is the practice in well managed private businesses and why should not the government of the United States likewise benefit from the application of so sensible a rule?

"Senators who urged tax reduction in the last session of congress, at a time when the amount of the surplus was still a matter largely of guesswork, did not stop to think that during the last six months of 1926 the surplus did not total nearly so much as it did in the first six months of that year. There was just one sensible way to meet this situation and that was to wait until he had the full returns for a year's working of the 1926 law.

"We have that information now and when the time comes I shall be perfectly willing to have the taxes reduced to the point where there will be no danger of a deficit at the end of the calendar year."

Vagrant Verse.

SPRINGTIME WOODS.

What blissful bliss the sluggards miss who lie
in bed a-drowse,
Now Phoebus drives his ruddy shafts athwart
the silvered boughs!
Not theirs the sparkling artistry on stem and blade and stone,
The brooklet's tinkling solo in the cold air
clearer grown,
Not theirs the tricky squirrel, now on swaying branches buoyed,
Now gayly parachuting down the parlous airy
void;
A second's halt—a furry ball—two jeweled eyes
—a glance!
Then down the beech's polished stem there flies a furry dance!
Not theirs the thrushes raking nooks for meager
chance of food,
Now Frost hath flung his cruel gage on every fallow sod.
Here robins hop with pleasant-lords of proud and glossy feather,
Fine shot, count the haunts of men when flourish is the weather.
Far, far on high the pillared boles their arching boughs unite
To weave a screen canonical for heaven's peering light;
Here anchoraged—who would not be a ragged
eremite?
'Tis mine to print the velvet by the Titan
beechy root,
To bathe in deep leaf-melody an idle gypsy foot;
A path hedged in with shrubbery divides my rich demesne
A rustling Red sea floor betwixt two walls of evergreen!

New York Day by Day.

BY O. O. M'INTYRE.

New York, April 30—The theatrical understudy save in fiction, rarely wins over his star. Very seldom does a star miss a performance and give the understudy a chance. Yet the understudy must be on the job constantly, ready to jump into a breach.

There are innumerable aging character women seeking slim parts here and there, who spent their ambitious years as understudies. The best they got out of it in the long climb was a fleeting night or so in a leading part that was the next day forgotten by the audience.

The understudy must have unusual talent, sufficient, indeed, to fill a stellar role. Then they become skilled in an art they may not often display. Now and then an understudy is able to step into any masculine or feminine role in the play with surprising versatility.

There are some performers who can not be "understudied." Al Jolson, for instance, he is all, the show is forced to close until he recovers. And there are temperamental players whose contracts forbid an understudy. They take no chances.

Several years ago a young dramatic actress found her voice a mere whisper two hours before the curtain went up. Throat specialists were called in, to no avail. An understudy stepped into the role and in theatrical argot "stopped" the show.

Her triumph was so overwhelming that at the end of the week she received her notice. Jealousy. Later she was starred in another play, but without success. She had her one victorious night. The understudy's salary is slight compared with the importance the job may suddenly attain.

A brash show-off, desiring to impress his lady friend with his importance, wired a comedian in a revue who picks out celebrities for a bow from the audience as follows: "There is a silver cigaret lighter for you if you will pick me out for an introduction tonight. I will be in Right B 2." The comedian, to the gentleman's consternation, read his telegram and then introduced him. Ten minutes later Right B 2 and the adjoining seat were vacant.

Raymond Hitchcock was the first actor to recognize and introduce columns in the audience and the first gentleman to be thus introduced on Broadway was Charles M. Schwab. And he made a neat and graceful little speech.

A. A. Aarons is a theatrical producer. His telephone rang. A voice inquired who he was. He replied, "A. A. Aarons." He was asked to spell it and he began "A. A. A-a-"

"Just a smart cracker, eh?" interrupted the voice. "Well, take a broad running jump in the lake for yourself." — and the receiver clicked.

A New York magazine editor is launching a movement to abolish the coldly formal and printed rejection slip. He makes the chief statement—chiefly at least to ambitious writers—that his magazine and most others are solely through recognized literary agencies and that writers should fall in with this systematized procedure. The custom is not, however, general. Many magazines prefer to go through the heavy hopper in the hope of finding real wheat among the chaff. One editor tells me that in a single month he discovered three manuscripts of merit in this fashion. There is also a writer in Greenwich Village whose study is completely papered with rejection slips and it's a big study.

The Pennsylvania station at Waldo was burglarized. As the contents of the express packages opened were not known, the value of the goods stolen could not be estimated.

There were eighteen deaths in the city during the month, six less than in April, 1906.

Little Billy's mother was phoning a friend about the boy's case of chickenpox. She informed the friend that Billy was broken out on his body but his face was still comparatively unaffected.

"Tell her they're still hatching," interrupted Billy.

Conan Doyle, the creator of Sherlock Holmes, once went for a day's deepwater fishing, and the old boatman, knowing who his patron was, bombarded him with questions about incidents and happenings in the career of the great detective. To most of them Conan Doyle took shelter behind the answer, "I have forgotten" or "I don't remember." Finally, the old boatman said:

"You remember when Sherlock Holmes fell over the cliff, don't you?"

"Oh yes. I remember that all right," Conan Doyle had to confess.

"Was he badly hurt?"

"Yes, he was."

"I thought he must have been," said the old follow, "he's never been the same man since."

400 HEALTH POSTERS SUBMITTED TO JUDGES

Awards in School Contest To Be Awarded May 5; Displays Planned

Approximately 400 of the 2,000 posters made by Marion School Children during this week, in connection with the pure food and good health poster contest being conducted by the Marion Pure Food Dealers' Association and Federation of Women's Clubs assisted by the Parent Teacher Council, were collected and submitted to the committee for judging yesterday.

Only 400 of the many posters were submitted as the time limit for the contest was such that many grades had prepared their posters.

Announcement of awards will be made May 5 the posters now being displayed in local store windows during the week of the State Convention of Women's Clubs to be held here.

The grand prizes are to be $10 in gold, second $3 and a basket of food and third, $2 and a basket of food. There will also be special prizes for the various grades.

Judges are Charles W. McCune, G. Edgecomb Abbott, Lockard, Frank Pero and Wendell Wurst.

"I AM ALSO THANKFUL"

Ruminated Bill Smith as he reflectively eyed a small bit of toast suspended on the end of a wooden toothpick, "that I have learned I must not mix my friends up in my financial affairs. There is but one surer method of losing a friend than to loan him money and that is to borrow from him.

"Just about every time you establish a relationship of borrower or borrowee with one of your friends, you might about as well bid your friendship fare well, for sooner or later something is going to come up to knock it higher than a kite.

"Marion Chattel Loan Co., 136 S. State st., is the proper place to have one's financial needs satisfied. There is the place I go, and there is the place I send my friends. A good bit ago I learned to be thankful that there was such a place for me, and even more thankful that here I could safely guide those who wish to borrow from me, and I would still have friends." NASH
Leads the World in Motor Car Value

There is a DIRECT force-feed oil line to each and all of the seven bearings and to the seven wrist-pin assemblies.

Nash 7-bearing crankshaft takes longer to build—costs more

It takes longer to build a 7-bearing motor than it does to build one with only 3 or 4 main bearings.

There are at least 3 more bearings to hone and polish. (Nash has considerably more bearing surface than other six-cylinder motors in the Nash price field with 4-bearing crankshafts.)

There are at least 3 more bearings to align. And there are at least 3 more bearings to check for proper clearances.

But the Nash 7-bearing crankshaft eliminates the "whip" which loosens bearings and piles up expensive shopwork on motors with fewer crankshaft bearings.

Obviously, it costs more in time and money to build the Nash 7-bearing crankshaft.

Why then does Nash build it, when other manufacturers still use engines with fewer bearings?

The answer is that Nash owners have come to expect Nash to be definitely better than any other car they could buy at the Nash price.

And 7 bearings alone produce superlative power-smoothness and power-quietness.

Before you select your new motor car, drive a Nash and see how smooth it is at high speeds, how powerful and effortless its pick-up at every speed.

[The Nash Price Range on 26 Different Models Extends from $865 to $2080 f. o. b. factory]

The Packard Six
-a Finer car, at a Lower price

TODAY'S Packard Six is the finest car—excepting only today's Packard Eight—that the Packard Motor Car Company has ever built in all its 27-year history.

Yet the price of the most popular Packard Six model is lower by half than the introductory price of this great car seven years ago. The five-passenger Sedan now lists at $2250 at the factory—a figure which establishes a new price class for quality cars.

Today's Packard Six, in addition to the fine engineering and precision workmanship so long associated with Packard cars offers improvements found on no other car—except the Packard Eight.

Power, increased by 50 per cent over the earlier models; four-wheel brakes; larger, more beautiful, more comfortable bodies; instant chassis lubrication from the dash; these and many more refinements which together contribute to vastly superior performance, greater comfort and new ease of routine care.

Motorists have been quick to appreciate the new Packard Six values offered by the recent price reduction of $335. May we suggest prompt action to insure early delivery?

The Packard Six five-passenger Sedan, delivered at your door—freight and tax paid—now costs but $_____ You may enjoy Packard ownership by an initial payment as low as $_____ from which is deducted the value of your used car—any surplus being applied against the small monthly payments.

THERE'S ART IN WEARING NEW SPRING FINERY

SMART hats, scarfs, etc., are legion this season, but there is an art in the choosing and wearing of them. Before making a choice of these two articles as well as others such as gloves, shoes and hose, one should study herself, the suit with which the accessories are to be worn, and then decide what should be purchased and the way it should be worn to achieve the greatest chic.

The scarf worn in a simple fashion at the left above is carefully chose in the new dash pattern to wear with a sports coat in mixed gray. Notice the simple but exquisitely smart sports hat that carried out the general theme of the suit.

The sketch in the center is bizarre and should only be chosen by a woman who can "carry" such unusual things. It is a crepe de chine square adorned with a hold hand painted design in brilliant colors of a man and woman in evening clothes. It is worn jauntily folded and tied on the left shoulder with the points hanging over the right.

The picture at the upper right shows a conservative way of wearing the very popular fox scarf. It is worn with a tailored tan suit with a hat that has more severe lines than the one previously mentioned.

The large hat (below) is a tailored straw and trimmed with contrasting bands.

Stained Glass
Getting Thin
Old Display

BY EDNA S. DUTTON

IF you are a connoisseur of stained glass the time is at hand when you may lend it from bed and place it on exhibition to the wonderment of admiring friends without fear of being regarded a queer. This I have gleaned from good authority. It is only the thing to have some bits of stained glass worked out in an interesting and by all means an artistic manner, in at least one window of your home today. Who hasn't permitted their thoughts to ramble sometime or other during the service when the sunlight filter through the stained glass windows of a church and it has been arranged with the usual scene of the picture of an artist so why shouldn't one derive some pleasure out of looking at a window at home. If one happened to be head over heels in love with his art it wouldn't be a sinecure idea to weave into the window scene symbolic of his craft, a wash cloth and block for the hatter, razor for the barber and for the M. D. pad and pencil for a few minutes etc. etc. According to authorities the price per is reasonable so as the owner with a keen appreciation of the beautiful in stained glass and has been putting away quite a long and here a small bit of change effectively used some where in the house will those of his meager means can plunge to the extent of a whole window. Of course for some of us the most we can hope for is the revival of those old kaleidoscopes where one rolled one eye and got an evening's entertainment out of the colorful and ever changing bits of glass in the revolving pasteboard container.

I have a friend that just as sure as the spring fever bothers put on their appearance and that is the best to do is to "Sunday and go out for fried chop and pineapple. Needless to say she is a little more than pleasingly plump and pines for a "figger" of syphilitic contour a living replica of the fashion plate. She believes, and I guess she is right that the fried chop pineapple treat is the only real to the overplump for folks at her age brings the quickest results. Of course she doesn't make a regular diet of the fat between eating fat every other day or so and the rest of the prescribed treatment and manages to stay about the same weight. The most time mealtime in her young life means nothing. Fancy giving up fresh strawberries and cream with gobs of sugar, a luscious pork chops, nothing to grow, pie with ice cream for a chaser chocolate pudding foaming with meringue and dozens of other irresistible delectables just to fit the scales at the number of pounds one alleged ought to weigh. I admire her I am afraid that we who are on the better side of the fence will never become we are too weak to put up our courage to mix ourselves with the kamboloop and pineapple.

An old fashioned shoulder covering and a strip of rag carpet both over 50 years old are interesting features in the window of the Arden Shop, W. Center st, which is decorated for Mother's Day. Other articles in the window are old also, and as a whole the window will be interesting from an interesting and appealing standpoint.

Have Confidence But Don't Brag, Is Advice to Ralph

BY MRS. VIRGNIA LEE

ELBERT HUBBARD once said in "The Philistine," that "the man who doesn't toot his own horn the same will not be blown." And yet the one person who is despised in the world is the individual who is always talking about himself and his achievements. "Hates himself, doesn't he?" you say scornfully of the boaster. And he is the girls talk about the chap who is interested. Be he ever so handsome and talented they will have none of him. His bubble of self-esteem would easily be punctured if he could hear the caustic remarks they make about him.

WHAT attitude should one take toward himself? Here the Elbert Hubbards of the world are puzzled and even those conscientious leaders are accused of "discouraging complexes" and discouraged.

"Dear Mrs. Lee: How should one meet the world? Should you let it know that you are pretty good or should you be modest? I put your own experiences over the fellow who said that if you know you will never get ahead. I never know what to do. I don't like the fellow that goes about tooting his own horn all the time. It seems to be the only way to get ahead, but on the other hand I get tired about those 'humble' folks. They don't seem as good as the boaster. You feel they are insincere and I am quite apt to take them at their word, do I not?

RALPH."

I AGREE with you on both counts, Ralph. The less you say about your own attainments the better, generally speaking. Let your work speak for itself. Have confidence in yourself but don't brag.

TO "Glenna" who was severely criticized by her high school teacher for being "stupid", and who resented it and thinks of leaving school, I would say that teachers are not always as mindful of their pupil' feelings or of the demands of courtesy as they should be. But teachers are human and get worried, you know, and cross, just as you probably do occasionally at home. Don't withgo your opportunity for education just because of that. Show her you are not stupid and console yourself with the consideration that we all make and odd clever or will—appear stupid at times.

And as to family criticism of which "Rain" complains, having been a member of a large family myself I can say that sometimes very discouraging and hard to bear at the time, but on looking backward and when you leave home and meet life, you are apt to find that the members of that same critical family are your most ardent supporters, and to look back to your life at home as your happiest period.

Love's Embers

A Sequel to "Revelations of a Wife"

BY ADELE GARRISON

Madge's Curiosity

KATIE'S eyes fairly sparkled with enthusiasm at my proposal—the if a scenario writer is beyond the little maid—and she clapped her together in joyous approval."

"Oo ting! I fex," she said. "I out und I listen und I see if I vet dey say und I will be away."

"Very well, Katie," I said, and my flower basket and garden as if I meant to visit Asa- as when the back door closed, he ended. I returned to the ex- group in the yard where Jim was listening to the excited jabbering two men, patiently unable to stand them, while Dora and Mrs. interspersed comments which was well the foreboding mes- not understand.

"Don't you get them, Jim?" I asked, "I give up! Perhaps if we become familiar after you have a while."

The shorter man paid no more at- tion to my voice than if I had been one of the hens clucking in the chicken yard, but I was conscious that from beneath his queerly twinkling half closed eyelids, the tall man had cast a quick glance at me. It was the same look that from a man of my own race accustomed to reckoning with the mentality and intuition of educated women, would have meant, "Aha! What is she up to?" But the general appearance of the giant trying to talk to Jim, made me realize that no such idea was in his mind.

The next second, Katie's voice sounded excitedly from the door:

"Missis Graham, oh, my Missis Graham!" and my little maid dashed across the grass toward me.

"What do you suppose is eating that girl now?" Mrs. Tyler demanded. "I never saw such a piece for screaming and getting on anybody's nerves. You'd think the house was on fire at the very least. And I'll bet it's nothing more than a new mouse hole she's found."

"We shall soon know," I smiled, as Katie came up to me and launched an excited query:

"Oh, Missis Graham! You forgot tell me how many for dinner tonight? Ef shoost family den I have plenty dessert. Ef company, even vun, I have to make sometings."

I smiled at her, although I was a bit annoyed. Thoroughly imbued with the importance of the thing I had asked of her, she had invested her words and manner with such blatant theatricalism that any keen observer would have known in an instant that I had directed her to come upon the scene at that particular moment. I hoped, however, that the men who were still talking to Jim had paid no attention to her.

"I think you'd better make Mr. Graham's favorite pudding anyway," I said. "And I'm sure Mr. Nevitzen can be urged to stay to dinner. I wish you would pick a few of those early roses for me before you go back into the house."

I handed her my basket and shears and indicated a basin, but a few feet from the spot where the men were still talking to Jim. She gave me an unfathomable look and meaning look for which I could have shaken her and tripped over to the rosebush.

But even as she reached it, I heard the tall man say something in an undertone to the shorter one, and then they both turned to Jim, talking in an entirely different language than the one they had been using. That it was an execrable attempt at French, I soon realized, and Jim, answering them in the same tongue, though with much greater facility, was at last able to translate to me what they were saying.

"They are sorry the dog frightened you," Jim said, while the men watched him with grins that were somehow saturnine. "They have rented that shack of old man Grimsey in the woods back of our place and are going to stay down here this Summer for their health and the fishing."

Unsung Girl's Birthday Becomes National Event

Sketch by Haskell Coffin of Mrs. Ada de Acosta Root, with inset of her daughter, Alva

NEW YORK, April 2?—A nation joins in the celebration of an unsung girl's birthday May first, National Child Health Day. That day is the birthday of Little Alva Root, whose suggestion led to the annual celebration of the health day.

Her mother, Mrs. Ada de Acosta Root, long active in social and work, became interested in the American Child Health Association, founded by Herbert Hoover, some years ago. When she couldn't get a regular job with the organization, she began pushing sweet clovers.

She learned that forty thousand school children in America die yearly of preventable causes, that one out of crippled adults are injured then, the first six years of their lives and a large per cent needlessly handicapped; that a baby born in the country today has only eighty-six more chance of living a week than has an old man of ninety.

"But the fathers and mothers of the country surely don't know about these terrible statistics," Mrs. Root cried. "We must let them know."

Sooner, as is her way when interested, she talked and thought maine 'x of child health in those days, it was inevitable that her family should hear much of the subject.

One day, her small daughter, listening wide eyed, wondering eyed, said, "But, Mama, if the fathers and mothers don't know what to do for their little boys and girls, why doesn't somebody have a day to tell them?"

So National Child Health Day was set for May 1, the beginning of spring and the birthday of the little girl who suggested the idea.

The fourth observance of the day finds organizations everywhere uniting to save the nation's children.

What Has Gone Before

To the home of PROF and MOLLIE ELWELL in Camden, Ind., one night in October, 1918, is brought a woman who had fainted on a train. That night twin girls are born to her and she dies without revealing her name.

The story then moves forward 18 years. The twins have been adopted and named MARGARET and ELIZABETH. They are called RUSTY and BETTY.

JIM ELWELL, the son, enlists in the World War. He then discovers that one of the twins loves him.

He is shell-shocked at the battle of Sedan and at first is reported dead. Later he is identified in a New York hospital and his mother and father hasten to him to find his memory and speech gone. Specialists despair of his recovery. He is like a living dead man.

The day before his parents are to take him home Jim wanders away from his nurse, NELLIE DOWNING.

A frantic search is begun. Late that night he is found in Bellevue hospital, unconscious, his skull fractured, expected to die. He had been hit by a truck.

The twins are in Indianapolis at the home of their uncle, JOHN CLAYTON, the mystery of their identity having been cleared up while Jim was in France. John Clayton is notified that Jim, whose life has been despaired of, now has a chance to live, and he speaks of it as to MARTHA DALTON, an old friend of the Elwells.

Now Begin the Story

CHAPTER XXXVIII

"GIRLS," said John Clayton, "read this."

The two, who had been out all morning, at last, and little spreads of jam as proof there as they got the message's purport.

"Oh, gosh! Rusty, isn't it too good to be true?" She grabbed her sister's hands and kissed her.

Martha Dalton watched them indulgently. "Those two girls—young ladies now—and it seemed but yesterday that she had brought their mother to the door of the Elwell's, where they were born.

The old regret crossed her consciousness with John Clayton.

"God has tried Mollie and Prof very hard," she sighed. "When they got word last January from the war department that Jim was dead, Mollie's heart almost broke, for Jim was the apple of her eye. Then came the news that he was alive.

"I'll never forget that day they left to go to New York to see him. Mollie was almost wild with the joy of it. Then for her to get there and find him with his brain paralyzed." . . .

It was awful, Martha Dalton went on. "All through the summer I know, she has lived in the hope of someone being able to restore Jim's memory. And then that Credit was dashed and poor Louis for Jim. Yes, Prof and she certainly have had their trouble. I'll say. It's about time, our would look for things to brighten up for them."

The twins were silent. They, too, could have told of a great deal of suffering if they had cared to.

A few days later John Clayton received a long letter from Nellie Downing, written at the behest of Mollie and Prof and addressed jointly to the girls, Martha Dalton and himself.

The writer explained Jim's case thoroughly, from the time he first had come under her care at Metz up until the present. She gave the reasons, as outlined by the specialists, of why the chances for his recovery were few. She dwelt at considerable length, however, on the peculiar manifestation which music and the sight of emotion in an other brought about and the possibilities she thought might lie in this direction.

John Clayton paused at this point and thought. If there was any possibility, he told himself, and money could do anything, there were millions that he would not hesitate to spend.

The particulars attaching to Jim's accident also were given by Nellie Downing, and in a postscript she told of the splendid fortitude displayed not only by Mollie but by Prof, especially the courage and strength of character he had shown during the first days following Jim's disaster and Mollie's collapse.

"He bore up wonderfully," she wrote. "I have never seen a greater exhibition of courage and character. He is a marvel."

"That letter," declared John Clayton to the girls and Martha Dalton when he had finished reading it to them, "is a wonderful document in its unintentional revelation of a woman's heart and mind. In her efforts to show the loveliness of Prof and Mollie she inadvertently has produced a perfect picture of her own lovable character and her unselfishness. I should like to know her better."

"Mollie said that Nellie Downing was twenty-four and very pretty," was Rusty's hurried contribution.

Her uncle smiled.

"Beauty and youth, coupled to a fine character, certainly make for a very lovable woman," he said. "But this woman, if she were as ugly in face and form as the Witch of Endor, and as old, would still be beautiful and lovable. I know something of the way she has nursed Jim and been his constant servant."

It was, he added softly and thoughtfully, a very beautiful thing. "I must see to it we don't forget her in our happiness over this good news."

Rusty, from her perch on the arm of her uncle's chair, declared that she could love Nellie Downing who nursed Jim as was pretty or [illegible] and then forced and insisted been so good to Mollie and Prof and [illegible] to him should enable him to [illegible] Jim.

"But just the same," she continued with refreshing [illegible] more remember them for Jim [illegible] I'll bet she's got [illegible] and pretty her- [illegible] charming [illegible] been living in a [illegible] story in a book, doesn't [illegible]

This naive remark got a [illegible] Uncle John, who [illegible] Betty seemed to [illegible] funny in it.

"What are [illegible] Jim [illegible] guest?" Martha Dalton [illegible]

"She was ge[illegible] Clayton told her [illegible] Martha Dalton had a [illegible] sharp old eyes. On this [illegible] That would make [illegible] to her just [illegible] know."

Unqualified [illegible] result of her query was not one package, [illegible] was labeled "[illegible] eloy soon if it didn't [illegible] Martha Dalton [illegible] ling. Had the [illegible] [illegible] have guessed that [illegible] mischief. She [illegible] then spoke [illegible]

"Wouldn't it be [illegible] Have you told?"

Now sighed inwardly, partly satisfied. She had at last told herself that it was [illegible] between these girls regarding Jim Elwell. Maybe had dropped the remark on one of their confidential talks just before the armistice that Jim was coming home from the war to get work, the announcement of an engagement to one of his girl pals.

What got was Mollie evidently hadn't known. Nor did Martha Dalton know, but she was positive now that whichever girl it was the other knew and was keeping the secret with her.

John Clayton himself was doing some thinking. Partly from what he had observed of the girls' actions on the day they had received word that Jim Elwell lived and partly from what had just taken place in his presence, he had come to some sort of an opinion. He was keeping it to himself, but John Clayton had a way of keeping a great many thoughts to himself. It all acted on as well with his practice of years as a [illegible]

"I suppose," remarked the old [illegible] "that you think an old maid [illegible] hasn't any business to be [illegible] don't you? Well," she went on, "I'm not exactly a professional [illegible] I do have a pretty romance to [illegible] to the [illegible] Nellie Downing [illegible] would such a good one."

"I [illegible] she declared, "if ever [illegible] did turn out all right and Jim [illegible] his memory back. Perhaps I'm being too optimistic, in my old age, but you know, dear, I've been through a great deal and I've seen very unhappy situations turn out happily. Your return, for instance. Love, where you are now and for eighteen years it seemed that we never would find out [illegible]

TIME ALLOWED IN BORER WAR EXPIRES TODAY

Federal Men To Step in and Start Work Where Farmers Refuse

The time allowed farmers in Marion County and other localities in this section of Ohio to clear their fields of all refuse left from last year's corn crop in compliance with orders issued by the government in its corn borer eradication campaign expired today and next week federal clean-up crews are scheduled to start doing the work on farms where the order was ignored.

Cost of the federal clean-up service is to be charged against the land owners and assessed in connection with their regular tax collections, according to plans recently announced.

Before the federal men step in, however, all farmers will be given an opportunity to do the work themselves. If they indicate that this will be done and prepare to go ahead with the work at once, the federal crews will postpone action.

Compensation Rate

Farmers who attend to the clean up themselves are to be compensated at the rate of $2 per acre. Where the work is done by government men, the landowners receive no compensation for any crops which may be planted and in addition must pay for the clean up expense.

It was reported today at the office of Banks Collings, who is on duty here as temporary Marion County farm agent in charge of the corn borer campaign, that federal men will be in the county next week with oil burning equipment to be used in their clean up drive. This report was not verified however, and definite plans will probably not be known until Monday or Tuesday. The oil burning equipment, if sent here, would be used to destroy corn stubble, stalks and all other refuse from last year's crops found on Marion County farms.

Federal Man In Charge

The clean-up crews will operate under instructions from L. H. Worthley, federal administrator in charge of the corn borer campaign in Ohio and four other states, whose main office is in Toledo.

Worthley recently announced that not a great amount of clean up work by his men will be necessary in the other states and that his campaign will be centered largely in this section of Ohio. He has facilities, he states, for cleaning up 500,000 acres.

Mr. Collings has received reports that a large number of Marion County farmers have failed thus far to comply with the government order and that some have sown their fields for this year's crops without removing the old corn refuse. All of this planting will be a complete loss when the federal crews do their clean up work, it is stated.

Four inspectors appointed to assist Collings in the work in Marion County have been making a thorough inspection of their districts and will file reports with headquarters in Toledo. These reports will show the condition of all farms and also indicate the attitude of farmers toward the borer campaign.

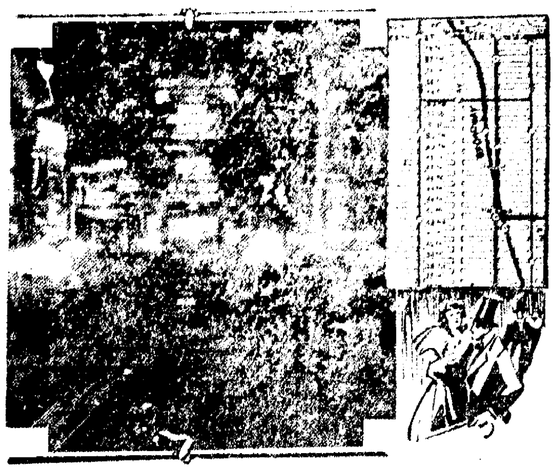
FILMS CONQUER BROADWAY



A glimpse of Broadway's "White Way" at night and a map showing the "white light district" in which the movies are crowding the stage plays from the famous street.

NEW YORK, April 30—Broadways celebrated "White Way" gleams more brightly than ever with the constant erection of huge signs but, naked it's not the same Broadway "first nighters" took to as they recall the good old days when Broadway was the home of the legitimate drama.

They point out that today on Broadway's west side between 42nd and 53rd streets not a single theater houses a stage play. Motion pictures, despised by the giants of a decade or so ago, are drawing the stage play from Broadway and the walls of the theaters of the drama. Nine theaters from 42nd to 53rd streets are showing pictures. Eight of these films are road shows or "super-specials" at $2.50.

There is no dearth of legitimate houses on 42d st., 70 of them in the Times Square section but many of the best blocks of Broadway have gone. Yet, all this must be laid as a result. There are legitimate theaters galore — but they are on the side streets leading into Broadway.

What, however, could be a road show that is being prepared for next season and booking agent for each one of the 60 enterprising to have his production shown on a Broadway house. It looks as if all the theaters on the "Main Stem" will be for the talkie drama or bust.

HOCKING VALLEY CHANGES ONLY ONE SCHEDULE

New Time Table Effective Today; Erie Wrecker Is Called Out

The new time table of the Hocking Valley Railroad, issued last Sunday and in effect today, changes the schedule of only one Hocking Valley passenger train operating through Marion.

The southbound passenger formerly scheduled to leave Marion for Columbus at 10:11 a. m., daily, now leaves this city at 10:27 each morning.

The Hocking Valley Railroad has operated four passenger trains each way through Marion since the first of the year, when it placed the "Buckeye" on the run. Direct service from Columbus, through this city, to Toledo and Detroit, is given daily.

Trains operated over the Hocking Valley through this city leave the Union Station as follows:

Northbound—8:29 a. m.; 12:45 p. m., 4:25 p. m., and 12:50 a. m.

Southbound—6:49 a. m.; 10:27 a. m.; 4:46 p. m. and 8:20 p. m.

All trains are operated daily.

SUIT INVOLVING 553-ACRE FARM CARRIED OVER

Judge Scofield To Fix Trial Date in Action Charging Fraud

At a hearing which started in Common Pleas Court yesterday morning and continued until 2 o'clock this afternoon, the suit of I. N. Latchaw of Mich., against R. B. Felt of this city was carried over pending a decision to permit submitting of oral testimony. The time for resumption of the trial proceedings will be fixed by Judge Scofield, who presided at yesterday's hearing.

The suit involves a series of transactions starting on May 12, 1924, when Latchaw is said to have entered into a contract with the Portage Coal Co., a corporation of which Felt was secretary and also president, for the transfer of coal land in Summit County.

On March 1st Latchaw was to receive Nickel Plate Railway stock, 553 acres of land in Wyandot and Morrow Counties and four promissory notes for $5,000 each.

Never Got Deed, Claim

Latchaw charges that he never received a deed for the 553 acres, his claim being that Felt retained possession of the land and sold it to other persons. The Portage Coal Co later made an assignment.

Felt claims that Latchaw agreed to accept a tract of land in Ashtabula County consisting of about 1,000 acres, in settlement. Latchaw denies this and demands cash compensation for the Morrow and Wyandot County property alleged to have been sold by Felt.

Gallagher & McCarron, Bucyrus law firm, represented Latchaw in the hearing and Felt was represented by Doerfler & Doerfler, local firm.

Confirms Distribution

Distribution of the proceeds from the sale of land in Franklin, Marion and Union counties, constituting a part of the estate of the late John Ruth of Green Camp Township was confirmed in Judge Scofield of Common Pleas Court today. The sale was made in connection with the suit of William S. Ruth et al others against Delgeny Wasson et al others, brought for the purpose of settling the estate. Sale of land in a northern Ohio county will complete the proceedings.

APRIL AUTO LICENSE FEES TOTAL $2,629.80

Half of Money Goes to State; City's Share of Fund Is $888.80

Collections from sale of auto licenses in Marion County during April totalled $2,629.80, which is being paid out today from the office of County Auditor Earl F. Thomas.

Half of the money goes to the state and the other half to the county and various municipalities in the county. Under provisions of the law it is used entirely for road and street maintenance and repair.

Distribution of the month's collections is as follows:

City of Marion $888.80; Caledonia, $39.10; Green Camp $46.95; LaRue, $417.27; Morral 2; New Bloomington $81; Prospect, $17.20; Waldo, $11.70; county, $278.20; state, $1,314.40.

The apportionment is based upon the number of licenses issued in the various localities. A total of 416 were sold during the month, the city of Marion being credited with 277, Caledonia 10, Green Camp 4, LaRue 31, Morral 1, New Bloomington 2, Prospect 5, Waldo 2 and rural districts 84. Half of the revenue from sales in the rural districts goes to the county.

10,095 Issued Here

The auditor's records show that since Jan. 1 a total of 10,095 licenses have been sold in the county. Last year more than 11,000 licenses were issued, bringing in revenue amounting to $65,857.91, half of which went to the state and half to the county and municipalities. The city of Marion's share last year was $27,201.34.

This year's sale of licenses will run considerably higher than the 1926 total, officials predict.

NEW LAW ADDS YEAR, FIVE MONTHS TO TERM

Bill Signed by Donahey Provides Longer Service for Recorders

Under provisions of a bill passed by the state legislature and signed yesterday by Governor Donahey, county clerks elected in 1928 will have their terms extended one year and five months and no election for that office will take place in 1930.

The new law changes the opening date of the county clerk's term from the first Monday in August to Jan. 1 and was drawn so that it would not extend the tenure of the present officials. As a consequence, the clerks elected next year will take office on the first Monday of August, 1928 and serve until Jan. 1, 1933, their successors not being elected until the fall of 1932.

The term of the county clerk is ordinarily two years. Harley E. Iksons now filling that office in Marion County, will begin serving his second term in August of this year.

PHRASEOLOGY OF ETLING BILL CONTROVERSY CAUSE

Clause Regarding Distribution of Fines Attacked in Legislative Circles

Columbus, April 30.—A controversy waged here today in legislative circles over the question whether alleged ambiguous phraseology has endangered effectiveness of the Etling bill, passed by the Ohio legislature this session, relative to the distribution of liquor fines and forfeited bonds.

The query relates to this section of the Etling bill:

"Money arising from fines and forfeited bonds shall be paid one-half to the state treasury, credited to the general revenue fund, and one half into the county when the officer hearing the case is a county officer, one half into the treasury credited to the county general revenue fund."

Some legislators insisted that the bill decrees an impossibility, by providing that "a whole shall be divided into three halves." They declared this, in itself, nullifies the bill.

Other legislators, however, voiced the opinion that the last dozen words—"one half into the treasury credited to the county general revenue fund" is merely "an explanatory phrase," intended to show that the one-half going to the county shall be credited to the county's general fund.

The Etling Bill was one of the 74 measures passed during the closing hours of the legislative session last week. It has not yet been acted upon by Governor Donahey.

ITEM OMITTED FROM TAX RETURN BLANKS, CLAIM

As the result of a mistake made in printing this year's supply of personal tax return blanks for the state of Ohio, no space is provided for merchants to list the average value of their stocks of merchandise, County Auditor Earl F. Thomas stated today. He has issued instructions for merchants to use item No. 11 on the blank to fill in their merchandise rates, requesting them to insert not only the amount but also to designate the class of business in which they are engaged.

NO DATE SET FOR TRIAL IN FORD-SAPIRO SUIT

Conference Between Opposing Counsel and Federal Judge Breaks Up

Detroit, April 30—The conference between opposing counsel in the $1,000,000 Ford-Sapiro libel suit and Federal Judge Fred S Raymond broke up today without a date having been set for a new trial.

A second conference was arranged on the question, July 1, when the summer term of federal court opens, indicating that the second trial will not get under way until September or October.

Attorneys for Henry Ford, Stewart Hanley and C. B. Longley, who bitterly opposed Sapiro's plea for an early trial, scored a victory in the postponement of a definite date.

William H. Gallagher, counsel for Aaron Sapiro, so-called "cereal king" who claims articles in the Dearborn Independent, a Ford organ, damaged him greatly, pressed for the earliest possible date. Gallagher even offered to share the expenses of the jury. There is no money available to pay an other jury panel because of the failure of congress to enact the second deficiency appropriation bill.

Judge Raymond finally ended the discussion by carrying a decision over until July 1.

The court declared that while his own time would be largely taken up on the summer months, public various sessions on the district there were report, that a new United States judge would soon be named here. They he said, would solve the problem.

EIGHTEEN MOTORISTS COME BEFORE MARTIN

Eighteen traffic violators paid visits to the office of Judge Martin in Municipal Court during the week, according to the court docket. Twelve of the men were tagged for parking where "no parking" signs had been put while two did not have the proper lights and two were accused of improper parking. But one arrest was made for reckless driving and one for obstructing the street. Each week sees fewer violations, police say.

BROADCASTING LICENSES TO REPLACE PERMITS

Federal Radio Commission Expecting 675 Stations To Continue Operation

Washington, April 30—Arrangements were being completed by the federal radio commission today for the issuance of 60 day broadcasting licenses to replace the temporary permits upon which stations are now operating.

A new list of temporary permits were made public today. A few more stations will be licensed before the commission closes "the books," and it was expected that when the temporary licenses completed there will be approximately 675 broadcasters on the air.

Forty-five stations, most of them operating on low power, voluntarily dropped off the air, while a few more were eliminated when they failed to meet the requirements of the radio commission.

CHIANG'S FORCES PUSH ON TOWARD HANKOW

Richer Chinese Citizens Already Reported in Flight from City

Shanghai, April 30—Having won success at Kaifeng, General Chiang Kai Shek is now driving toward an attack upon Hankow, according to reports received here.

General Yang Sen, whose forces have been estimated as high as 80,000 men, is reported to be under orders from Chiang to march upon Hankow.

Reports declare that Chiang has inflicted severe defeats upon the troops supporting the Hankow government. The Hankow troops are reported to be poorly equipped and without strong leadership and thus far have offered but little resistance.

Hankow is reported to be greatly excited and grave fears are felt of Chiang's eventual capture of the city. Some of the richer Chinese citizens are reported to be already in flight.

Any hopes that may have been entertained of a peace between the Hankow government and Chiang now seem to have gone glimmering. Chiang is reported as intending to push his forces to the fullest extent and to drive out the extremists in Hankow.

FIRST CHURCH OF CHRIST, SCIENTIST

First Church of Christ, Scientist Here Had Small Beginning In Private Home

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Marion, has had its career of some what more than 30 years marked by three changes of location and two remodelings, all required to provide adequate quarters for a growing congregation.

This church had its inception in the fall of 1895 when on Oct. 6 seven persons met in the home of Henry Hazen, corner of Sargent and Church sts. to hear a Christian Science service. Regular Sunday services and Wednesday evening meetings were then held there. On Nov. 15 those same individuals held a meeting in the home of Frank W. Kelly 243 S. Vine and formed what was known as the Christian Science Organization.

Subsequently, rooms were obtained in the Fisher Block now occupied by the Citizens Building & Loan Co., corner Center and Prospect sts. and the first service was held on April 5, 1896 with 22 persons in attendance. On Aug. 10 the organization was incorporated under the Ohio laws as First Church of Christ, Scientist, Marion, at which time it became recognized as an authorized branch of The Mother Church, in Boston Mass. The rooms in the Fisher Block served as the church home for two years, when it was found necessary to remove to larger quarters. Accordingly, in April, 1898, the society moved to the second floor of the Farmers & Mechanics Bank Building, now the Marion National Bank Building, where services were held on Sundays at 11 on Wednesday evenings for almost seven years, until some at was made to the present site.

Improve Center

In May 1899 three lots at the corner of Church st. and Mt. Vernon ave. were purchased the monthly billboard were removed and the property boarded up. In Dec. 1901, the adjoining house and lot were also purchased. The house was remodeled and services were held there in February 1905. Since then the house has been remodeled twice in order to accommodate the increased attendance. The reading room formerly housed in this edifice, has been moved downtown and now occupies room No. 21 in the Marion Building, 106 S. Main st. It is very convenient ly located and is light, airy and attractively furnished. The church is now comfortably housed on one of the most beautiful sites in the city and is free from debt.

The following is from a lecture on Christian Science delivered in Cincinnati, Ohio, recently by William D. Kilpatrick, C. S. B.:

"Christian Science, in line with the purpose of the teaching of Jesus, is turning the thought of mankind away from a material basis and directing it to the spiritual.

"As Jesus lifted the human concept of God from the material to the spiritual so does Christian Science. Hence, the first step in gaining a true understanding of Jesus' works and teachings and in gaining a correct Bible understanding of God, man and the universe is the light of Jesus' teachings is to dematerialize our sense of God and His law in our thinking.

Bible as Authority

"Taking the Bible for our sole authority we find God to be truth, life, love, spirit, principle and mind. And thus, with the aid of the Bible, we have developed completely our sense of God and find Him without a single material or bodily attribute or part. And we find Him dwelling right here and now to heal us provided that we express or reflect Him in His image and likeness as revealed in thinking.

"We begin to prove our own theories and experiences by the scientific basis, by the operation of law. As we learn to harmonize ourselves more and more in such a way that our thinking and conduct record message which will be true, even though we are not physically conscious of the presence of the Christ. The Christ presence is made manifest and we begin to live through the aid of the Christ and the receiving instrument is then properly adjusted. So in our mind.

"Our mental mind object is what our bodies, our possessions, our friends record good or bad. It is mental actual become of love appreciation, fear, worry, envy, lust, confusion, discouragement, pride, greed, not satisfied in any one of the mental types of evil thinking then our receiving instruments our body and our lives become subject to the many types of evil which constantly lurk in the realm of mortal ignorance and these forms of evil are in turn recorded as discordant bodily condition such for example as sickness, disease, pain, moral light, poverty, misery and the like.

"But let our mental mind be the realm of love, compassion, true wisdom, thanksgiving, charity, goodness, humility, forgiveness, devotion and the like then our lives will be the gentle influence of every person we love and bless, our every experience and blessing us with health happiness, freedom, peace and plenty."

So's Your Ol' Man

REV. ALFRED W. SWAN, Pastor, Forest Lawn Church

MANY good persons are greatly disturbed these days by the ridicule flung at religion that it is rooted in superstition. There is a periodic barrage of this kind of thing from various sectors of the fighting front, some pseudo scientists, brilliant writers, eminent artists, even. But let the serious man be not put to shame.

Every bit of knowledge we have began as superstition. All science did. Chemistry is descended from an almost mystical alchemy, which sought to transmute the elements, and betrayed the hopes of men with visions of changing lead into silver and gold.

The now mathematically exact science of astronomy, which can predict the meridian of a planet to the second a century hence, was ushered in by the vagaries of astrology that purported to be able to tell who would live to be president from the location of a star in the zodiacal sign of the birth.

Present day medicine is the offspring of an unspeakably superstitious fakirism, where powdered leopards' teeth and ground toads killed more often than they cured.

Physiology was ushered in by a phrenology which affirmed that the quality of the brain was determined by the contours of the skull and that men, having more essential bumps than we now find highly intellectual artisans.

Even so venerable a department of knowledge as the law must be brought to a paragon of exactly the failures of which charm magic and sorcery are the childish vestiges.

So theology need not worry when it is shown to be used by a happy lack of human knowledge. Indeed its long language is evidence of its immemorial nature, and in many a personal need of it.

Next time a glib tongued knight of specious argument challenge you with the taunt that your religion was once superstition pass him the compliment of the day with "Sez your ol' man!"

LESSON

Text—There came a voice out of the cloud This is My beloved Son, hear ye Him.—Mark 9.7.

Text—There came a voice out of the cloud, This is My beloved Son, hear ye Him—Mark 9.7

2 And after six days Jesus taketh with him Peter and James, and John and bringeth them up into a high mountain apart by themselves: and he was transfigured before them.

3 And his garments became shining, exceeding white as snow; so as no fuller on earth can white them.

4 And there appeared unto them Elijah with Moses: and they were talking with Jesus.

5 And Peter answered and said to Jesus, Rabbi, it is good for us to be here: and let us make three tabernacles; one for thee, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.

6 For he knew not what to answer; for they became sore afraid.

7 And there came a cloud, overshadowing them: and there came a voice out of the cloud, This is my beloved Son: hear ye him.

8 And suddenly when they had looked round about, they saw no one any more, save Jesus only with themselves.

9 And as they were coming down from the mountain, he charged them that they should tell no man what things they had seen, save when the Son of man should have risen again from the dead.

10 And they kept the saying, questioning among themselves what the rising again from the dead should mean.

2 Peter 1:16-18

16 For we did not follow cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty.

17 For he received from God the Father honor and glory, when there was borne such a voice to him by the Majestic Glory, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased.

18 And this voice we ourselves heard borne out of heaven, when we were with him in the holy mount.

YOUNG PEOPLE IN CHARGE

State Director Vernon M. Riegel Outlines Stand In Bucyrus Controversy

BY CARL BAKER
Star Correspondent

BUCYRUS, April 30—"My statement in regard to my removal of the first grade charter of Bucyrus High School made in a letter last week, had no reference to the employment of Supt. Jesse L. Ward, or anybody else," declared Vernon M. Riegel, when interviewed in Columbus yesterday afternoon.

Riegel, state director of education, who sent a letter to President E. G. Beal and Mrs. Cora Goldsmith of the Bucyrus Board of Education threatening to withdraw the first rate high school charter of Bucyrus High School if the "will of the people" is not heeded stated that certain people were attempting to read into his letter a meaning that was not there. They consider he is said are making an unwarranted effort to influence the board in the selection of a superintendent.

It does not make any difference whatever to him or the State department of education who the superintendent of Bucyrus school is so long as that man is qualified to hold the position, he said.

"What I am interested in," Riegel declared "is the welfare of the Bucyrus school and I know [illegible] charter of Bucyrus High School if the [illegible] is not heeded stated that certain people were attempting to read into his letter a meaning that was not there. They consider he is said are making an unwarranted effort to influence the board in the selection of a superintendent.

It does not make any difference whatever to him or the State department of education who the superintendent of Bucyrus school is so long as that man is qualified to hold the position, he said.

"What I am interested in," Riegel declared "is the welfare of the Bucyrus school and I know [illegible] he most emphatically would if the school does not function properly. Asked about the extent of his authority in the matter Riegel declared, "When I act I won't exceed my authority."

Makes Reference

Riegel declared that the New Philadelphia situation referred to by men members of the board, was in no way applicable to the Bucyrus situation and as for the Cleveland affair he declared that he had never known of any similar Cleveland controversy. Riegel further stated that if all the facts were known by the board members they would find nothing to encourage them in their present stand "for that the contrary would be the case."

Questioned about the report that Bucyrus schools have been repeatedly inspected recently, Riegel said that Bucyrus schools have not been inspected except in the regular order of inspection. Referring to his records, he declared that the schools were inspected in 1924 and in 1926 and then only in the same manner as other high schools. He said that the inspection did not reveal any change in the efficiency of the schools. Again referring to his letter Riegel continued, "I didn't say that the present administration is better than the previous one, but I think that it is just as good." The word "propaganda" used in his letter to Beal in the sentence, "The presence demonstration was [illegible] of propaganda, while observation of actual work by the head of our teacher training department [illegible] better what it was [illegible] be," Riegel explained meant [illegible] liberty. The school is, he said, were over capitalized [illegible] country and represented as being better than they really were.

Riegel denied inferences that Governor Donahey had taken an hand in the matter of his letter. He said that after Mr. Beal [illegible] the governor Wednesday, he and the governor talked [illegible] other matters.

People Want Ward.

When asked as to the motives [illegible] Riegel stated that I am convinced that the people of Bucyrus want Supt. Ward reinstated [illegible] organizations that have made [illegible] expression on the matter are supporting him and all the [illegible] seem to be for him. I have tried to [illegible] great opposition to him and I think that the people favor [illegible] their wishes carried out without having their will thwarted by the personal prejudices of board members. It appears to [illegible] case in which the people seem to be helpless and I can do anything to help the people, especially when those opposed to them give no reason for their opposition, I expect to do it. That I wanted to put the members of the board of education on guard against creating demoralizing controversy in the schools because it couldn't possibly be for the best interest of the schools and a loss of recognition would necessarily follow.

Asked as to what might constitute a condition justifying the withdrawal of the recognition, Riegel said that it might be many different things. A breakdown in the morale might be one, he explained.

OAK GROVE-AV WORK WILL BE RESUMED SOON

Contractors Expect To Start Operations Again Early Next Week

Residents of Oak Grove-av, opened by those between Uniopolis-av and a point about three lots this side of Barks-av are there is over what they say is the neglect of the contractors to complete the building of the concrete street.

According to those registering the complaint, the street was abandoned last fall after one-fourth of the street had been completed and the materials and been roughly graded. That portion of the street was impassable and was blocked off during the entire winter. W. K. Drake of the W. Drake & Son, who have the contract for building the road said today that work would probably be resumed early next week. He decided his position by saying that the successful building of a concrete street can be only carried out when the weather is right. Weather too wet or too cold such as existed last fall and this spring will result in the surface peeling and spoiling the street.

A large concrete mixer and a quantity of stone and sand are in place on the street. One redeeming feature of the affair, the residents say, is that the sand provided a safe and happy playground for the children of the neighborhood.

NEW, CHEAP DYE

Inexpensive Product Is Made From Coal

Minneapolis, Minn., April 16—Discovery and successful manufacture of a dye unlike any other dye being produced in the world in a plant in Bottineau, N. D., has been placed on the market, according to a business review of a Minneapolis bank.

The new dye known as Dakaiote is cheaply manufactured from waste of lignite coal, billions of tons which is found in western North Dakota. The mineral dye or color base is in brown shades and is being used most extensively as a wood stain.

MOTHER'S DAY WINDOW SHOWN AT ARDEN SHOP

Unusual Display Arranged in Local Store Attracts Considerable Attention

A "Mother's Day" window that is a feature is that displayed at the Arden shop on W. Center-st. Indeed it is a wonderful array of beautiful boxes of candy or beautiful other things that are being urged as the proper gifts for mothers, is a scene that typifies a "mother's day" of long ago when mothers knew more about boys and less about bridge. It is a scene that would have brought joy to the heart of James Whitcomb Riley.

It is attracting considerable attention.

Lying on the seat of a low rocking chair are a pair of little boy's trous in the process of receiving a much needed patch. Resting on the trousers are a pair of shears and a thimble while on a small top table nearby lies an old fashioned pair of spectacles for all the world like they were laid down suddenly when a call came to investigate what the owner of the trousers ought be into now.

On the floor beside the chair is the contents of the trouser pockets, a job of what would be considered by other folks as their wisdom as junk, what to the boy it must have been a collection to be proud of. On the table there also rests a small well thumbed Bible, adding further old fashioned atmosphere to the picture.

An old fashioned rag carpet covers the floor while here and there ornaments dear to the hearts of the mothers of long ago put a touch to the picture that, to those familiar with the "mother's day" of long ago is a refreshing breath of the past.

A mother who sees the first beginnings of character in her child knows her son better than anybody else.

R. T. LEWIS CO. PURCHASES OLD MOUSER TRACT

Transaction Involves 19 Acres Facing on Mt. Vernon-av, Summit-st

One of the large real estate transactions involving property within the city's limits recorded here in some time was consummated today when the R. T. Lewis Co. obtained possession of the about tract, a plot containing 19 acres facing on Mt. Vernon-av and Summit-st.

Included in the tract is the old Mouser homestead on the corner of Mt. Vernon and Hale-ave.

Four years ago this property was purchased, platted into the Vernon Heights Realty Co., where it was thought that the commerce might be centered and incidentally in the present Vernon Heights factory.

At the last meeting of directors of the Vernon Heights Realty Co., Mr. Lewis offered the property to the company. It was decided not to increase the company's holdings at the present time and a lot in Vernon Heights, the head of Kane-av to be used for street purposes, was sold to the R. T. Lewis Co. Under this arrangement Kane-av will now be extended through Mt. Vernon-av in keeping with the original plans worked out four years ago.

Tuesday parties have been on hand with the completion of the last two years Mr. Lewis and home, and plans have been completed for the opening of lots from 140 included in the original plat. In fact the complete Lewis plans for the development of the property have not been made here.

DEMAND FOR SOFTWOOD REMAINS UNCHANGED

Total Business Trifle Behind Last Year's Lumber Trade, Survey Shows

In its weekly review of the market, the American Lumberman, Chicago, says:

Demand for softwood during the week ended April 16 amounted to the usual percentage, 142 of production as in the preceding week. Total business for the year to date, however, is a little behind that for the corresponding period of last year. But while bookings for the first quarter of last year took only eight per cent more than the production, as a result of curtailment of the output this year the bookings have amounted to 12 per cent more than the production.

Practically all the major softwood operators are proceeding cautiously, to avoid any additions to unsold stocks that might cause price weakness. Taking the figures for the first fifteen weeks the west coast mills cut 30 per cent more than their normal last year.

"MERRY WIDOW" TOURNEY CLOSES TONIGHT

EARLY LEADERS STILL TOP LIST OF "Y" BOWLERS

Shoemaker Heads Singles with 671 Pins; Kopp and Boyd Lead Doubles

The Merry Widow bowling tournament at the Y. M. C. A. closes tonight.

The tourney got under way three weeks ago and since that time many of the leading bowlers in Marion have taken part in an effort to establish a record high mark in the singles, doubles or mixed doubles, or all of them.

The race in the singles has been the most hotly contested. Boyd, early in the tourney, set a high mark of 647. This record stood for several days until finally broken again by Boyd, who rolled 663. Then, last Saturday, Shoemaker stepped forth and took the lead with a score of 671. He's still on top. He won the singles last year and will probably repeat.

Kopp and Boyd

Kopp and Boyd set the record mark in the doubles on the fifth day of the tournament. They rolled 1289 and have never been threatened. The closest rival is 1229, made by Shoemaker and McRill. Kopp and Mc Rill follow with 1228.

Wheaton and McRill lead the mixed doubles as the last night of play gets under way. They also set a high mark of 1163 easily in the meet. While the couple has rolled several other high scores, their closest rivals are Blum and Wheeler, who are credited with only 1075, almost 100 pins under the record point.

Here's how the three highest in each class stand as the tourney nears completion:

Singles

Shoemaker	671
Boyd	663
Drum	657

Doubles

Kopp and Boyd	1289
Shoemaker and McRill	1229
Kopp and McRill	1228

Mixed Doubles

Wheaton and McRill	1163
Blum and Wheeler	1075
Blum and McFarland	1043

MOELLER'S PETS AND MARYSVILLE TO PLAY

Opening Game on Union County Diamond Sunday Afternoon

Delaware Moeller Pets are scheduled to open their sixteenth diamond season May 1, when they meet the Marysville American Legion team at Marysville.

Moeller is counting on his two hurling aces, Wyman, formerly of the Canadian league, and Hendley, Delaware product who has shown consistent improvement for the last six years, to lead his club to a victory over the Marysville Legion outfit.

"Cap" Ansell, manager of the Marysville nine, and Ed. Moeller, leader of the Delaware club, who both organized their teams about the same time 16 years ago, keenly rival each other.

WORLD'S GREATEST SPRINTERS TO ENGAGE IN SERIES AT PENN RELAY CARNIVAL TODAY

Roland Locke, Hank Russell and Jackson Scholz To Try for New World's Maark; Locke "Not Right," Says Walsh; Scholz Expected To Win, but Set No New Record

BY DAVIS J. WALSH

PHILADELPHIA, April 30—Roland Locke, who ran 220 yard dashes for Penn ever hoping for the greatest of all time, Jackson Scholz who raced against the world's greatest sprinters over the course at the Penn relays, and Hank Russell, intercollegiate champion from Tech, will engage in a series of the Pennsylvania Relay Carnival this afternoon and the general idea is that one of the trio will emerge the winner of the 1927 edition of the world's "fastest human."

Locke arrived from Nebraska last night and with him came the story that the corn huskers are "sure" Russell, the lad, is moving just about fast enough to keep from getting chilled. As for Scholz, nobody seemed to know whether he was running to form or not as he naturally was under a favorable handicapping.

The trio will face the barrier in two races at 100 and 220 yards, the latter distance at which Locke is "taken" as rather setting into his stride. Barber in California some weeks ago. It was evident that Roland wasn't going to sell them and we hope you may be that he has gotten over very rapidly in the meantime.

Too Early For Sprinters

As a matter of fact, the meet is too early for the sprinters to get going for seasonal form and it is assumed that Locke considers his 220 yard victory in California and his two easy trimmings in Los Angeles in recent weeks, simply isn't ready yet. A bet on Scholz at both distances, therefore, looks the part of a "natural."

The sprint events, nevertheless will be taken at very illustrious programs and, at that, it will at least prove something if only the identity of the best April sprinter of the campaign.

Other good numbers on the list are the shuttle hurdle relay, put on for the express benefit of our English guests, the one, two and four mile college relay championships, the interclass 100 yard event with Hester, Pa. Michigan star, back to repeat last year's victory, the 880 yard college relay championship and various and sundry field events. Notable among the latter will be the appearance of Archie Hahn, Chicago high leaper, who failed to 6 feet, 7 inches only a week ago.

Anything Possible

Anything is possible here and that goes double for the pole vault in which Lee Barnes, United States Chief of Yale, who cleared 14 feet, 9 5/8 inches for a new world's record indoors. They say Cornell is shooting at 14 feet today.

The British Empire team, Lord Burghley leading a band of hurdlers including Gibson of the 400 meter relay team and the rest of the squad will be in charge of the 120 and 440 yard events respectively.

BABE'S AGAIN AT IT; HITS FOURTH

New York, April 30—After a slow start, Babe Ruth is off on a home run rampage again. He hit his fourth circuit clout of the season against the Rex Sox yesterday and now is tied with his team mate, Lou Gehrig, and Cy Williams of the Phillies.

If the Rambino continues at his present rate, he figures to hit nearly 50 homers this season.

RAIL STOCKS CENTER OF SPECULATIVE INTEREST

Southwestern Merger Group Shows Strength Under Aggressive Buying

MARKETS AT A GLANCE
Railroad stocks, strong; industrial stocks irregular, domestic bonds, inactive, foreign bonds, steady, grain firm, copper, steady; oil, weak, cotton, firm; rubber, steady; sugar, steady; pig iron, steady, foreign exchange, steady.

New York, April 30—Stocks of the railroad companies were the center of speculative interest in the short session of the market today. The southwestern merger stocks, under the lead of Kansas City Southern moved upward in response to aggressive buying while speculative shares of the Chicago Great Western New Haven and other well known systems reached a slightly higher price level.

A comparatively high volume of domestic business was reported in the week-end business surveys in spite of the handicaps of the coal strike, the Mississippi floods and the inclement weather in various parts of the country. The lower operating schedule of the steel mills and other manufacturing enterprises has resulted in a decline in employment at the industrial centers though that is not unusual for this time of year.

The strength displayed by the industrial stock leaders near the close of today's session was encouraging to the bulls, inasmuch as it did the correction of distress selling of weakly margined accounts. Some short covering was induced by this firmness in the general market but outside demand was comparatively small and the market backed and filled through a narrow margin of prices with many of the outstanding speculative leaders entirely missing from the day's lists.

The California oil stocks turned up on reports of improvement in the western production situation. Union oil and California petroleum scored up about a point. No change was reported in Mid-continent and Texas oil prices, which continues in record breaking volume.

TO SHOW "BIG PARADE OF NAVY" AT GRAND

Pictures of the battle of the North Sea in which the combined British and American fleets defeated the Germans, comprise some of the most spectacular scenes in "Convoy," the $1,000,000 First National Picture which is to be shown at the Grand Theater soon.

The picture, requiring four months to make, has just been shown before high officials of the Navy Department at Washington and has been declared by them to be "A Big Parade of the Navy."

The film, made with the co-operation of the U. S. Navy, was based on John Taintor Foote's famous novel story, "The Song of the Dragon," and tells of the dramatic exploit made by a girl in protecting the safe sailing of the Clarion on which her brother and sweetheart have been ordered to Europe.
